BIG HAUL EXPECTED BY LIQUOR SQUAD FAILED TO MATERIALIZE

Officers Believed They Had Discovered Booze Transfer Point—Got Tip on Big Load of Booze That Didn't Show Up—Interesting Liquor Case in District Court Today

Members of the liquor squad today testified in district court before Judge Thomas J. Enright that earlier in the month they had discovered what they believed to be a transfer point for liquor runners. Sgt. Michael Winn said that the place in question had been under surveillance for some time and that he was sure a No. 1 street garage was the meeting place of illicit rum-runners who transferred contraband from one auto to another.

OPENING OF THE TEXTILE SCHOOL

Freshmen Addressed by Principal Charles H. Eames in Southwick Hall

New Arrivals are "Cordially Greeted" and "Tormented" by Upper Classmen

About 40 members of the 1922 class of the Lowell Textile school arrived in this city this morning. They came, they saw, but they did not conquer for upper classmen, mindful of the "cordial" reception accorded them in previous years, decided not to be outdone in the morning. Consequently greeted the newcomers with a veritable baptism of welcome. Early in the morning, Principal Charles H. Eames addressed the freshmen in Southwick hall, outlining the plan of campaign for the ensuing year and impressing on them the necessity of brotherly love and true and loyal college spirit. At 11 o'clock sophomores, juniors and seniors, having anxiously and impatiently awaited the conclusion of the principal's speech, corralled the freshmen in the campus yard and proceeded to exemplify what Mr. Eames meant by "spirit," and if the tyro's didn't get the point by the time the hazers arrived in Merrimack square, then George Washington never crossed the Delaware.

DOUBLE MURDER STILL BAFFLES AUTHORITIES

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 25.—Admitting that they have been unable to make any real headway in the search for the slayers of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, rector of the Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, and his choir leader, Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills, investigators began today an entirely new inquiry.

They decided to begin all over in the hope that some clue which will lead them out of the maze of perplexities may be uncovered. All available suggestions have been run down without bringing them any closer to a solution than they were a few hours after the bodies were discovered about 10 days ago.

They still feel certain that jealousy was the motive which prompted the double killing, but they confess themselves baffled at every turn.

Their investigations have disclosed ever increasing evidence of dissension with the church, all pointing to trouble fomented by the reported friendship of the rector and Mrs. Mills and her apparent influence over the minister in his conduct of the church.

But they have been unable to find the person or persons who fired the fatal shots.

Raymond Schneider, who with Pearl Bahner, found the bodies, was to be questioned for a second time today.

GREEK CABINET GAINS STRENGTH

Belief Expressed in Athens That it May Live Out Present National Crisis

New Ministers Added With the View to Bring it Popular Support

ATHENS, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Spurred to greater effort by popular clamor for its resignation, the cabinet of Premier Triantafyllakos is developing unexpected cohesion in strength and may even live out the present national crisis.

It has added new members to the ministry, chosen with the view to bringing it popular support, has appointed Gen. Papoulas governor-general of Thrace and has designated three popular generals to proceed to Thrace and push the work of reorganizing the army there.

Meanwhile a note from the allied powers disclosing their communication to Mustafa Kemal Pasha according to his conditions for peace has reached the foreign office. The powers in their communication merely informed the Greek government of their action.

Determined to hold Thrace Greece is not looking for more trouble, said one official today, but she intends to go right on with the task of building up her army in Thrace. In Thrace Greece is and in Thrace Greece will remain the watchword today of the Greek people.

If the cabinet finally fails the inter-Skinned milk is a very valuable food.

Petition Seeking Acceptance of Plan B Charter For Lowell Filed This Morning

Papers Embracing 3500 Signatures, Placed in Hands of Election Commission at 9 O'Clock—Petition Specifies Annual Elections—If Commission Certifies 3000 Names Question Will Go to Voters on State Election Day, Nov. 7

A petition for Plan B charter for the City of Lowell, containing 3500 signatures, was filed with the board of election commissioners shortly after 9 o'clock this forenoon, by Cornelius J. Desmond, who has fathered the movement and who is mainly responsible for securing the names that appear thereon.

If the election commission is able to certify to approximately 3000 of the names that are affixed to the petition, the question of acceptance or rejection will be put up to the voters on November 7, the date of state elections, and if the plan is accepted it will become operative on January 1, 1923 and in December of this year, a city election will be held under its provisions.

The actual filing of the petition sets at rest a multitude of rumors regarding a possibility of not filing in the city for the past several weeks and have resulted in a great deal of speculation, street corner argument and general controversy.

Annual Elections Specified

In filing the petition, the petitioners have exercised their option as granted by an amendatory act of the general court in 1922 and have specified that elections under this form of charter shall be annual. It rested with the petitioners to make it annual or bi-annual and they have chosen the former.

The board of election commissioners went into session at 11 o'clock and before the day is over will have made rapid progress on the work of checking up and certifying the names that appear on the petition. When Mr. Desmond filed the petition, he announced that all names have been checked up with the new voting lists and he is satisfied that there is a sufficiency, with several hundred

USE OF THE AUDITORIUM

Memorial Auditorium Trustees Give Out Statement Over Their Signatures

"The chances are strongly against any proposition whereby the Lowell Memorial Auditorium will be used for '10-cent movies' or free dancing."

The board of trustees will meet tonight to discuss matters pertaining to the use of the building, but in advance have authorized the following statement to the people of the city, carrying the approval and bearing the signatures of Charles H. Hobson, chairman; Major Frederick A. Estes, Thos. P. Bouger and Mayor George H. Brown.

"Our duty as trustees is to see that the co-operation of every citizen of Lowell and we want you to realize that it is your building, built in memory of your sons who served in all our wars, and is yours for promoting local pride and the public welfare."

"Our duty as trustees is to see that it is kept in proper condition and devoted to the service of the people."

"We are not in any sense promoters of dances, moving picture shows or any exhibition, and while we welcome any clean show or dance under proper restrictions given to the public, we do not intend to have the use of the building for that purpose come from some irresponsible person or organization."

Signed

CHARLES H. HOBSON, PRESIDENT

FREDERICK A. ESTES, CHAIRMAN

THOMAS P. BOUGER, SECRETARY

GEORGE H. BROWN, MAYOR

TWO SHOT AND TWO STABBED

Members of Longshoremen's Union and I. W. W. Agents in Battle at Hoboken

Firearms, Bricks and Bale Hooks Used in Fight Near Holland-American Line Pier

HOBOKEN, N. J., Sept. 25.—Two men were shot and two stabbed today in a clash between members of the International Longshoremen's Association and men said to be agents of the Industrial Workers of the World near the Holland-American line pier. Police reserves called to quell the disturbance arrested five men.

The police were told that the trouble started when I. W. W. workers threatened John Nolan, labor organizer, and member of the Longshoremen's organization. Nolan, it is claimed, fired a shot into the air in an effort to drive back the crowd. Some one pulled his arm down, the police said, and the bullet struck Paul Kunert and George Knipring.

The shooting precipitated a small riot in which firearms, bricks and bale hooks were used. Edward McDonald, a labor organizer, affiliated with the Longshoremen's Association, and Bernard Foley of Hoboken were cut.

on Sunday afternoon. The trustees never have had such a plan even tentatively in mind and it was indeed unfortunate that the one article seemed to place the board in the position of favoring it."

Mr. Hobson stressed the fact that the board of trustees is not in the business of promoting dances, motion picture shows, or any exhibition, although any clean show or dance, under proper restrictions and free of charge, is welcomed, provided that the request comes from a responsible person or organization.

Human bones used to be kept as amulets and charms, and the oldest known relic is the thigh bone of a mammoth.

MANY STRIKERS REPORT FOR WORK AT THE HAMILTON MILLS

Former Employes Were Instructed Last Saturday to Report for Work This Morning—Strike Leaders Unable to State How Many Old Hands Were Reinstated

The first step in the settlement of the strike at the Hamilton Mfg. Co. was taken this morning when a large number of strikers reported for work. It is understood that several of the former employes of the plant were sent for last Saturday and instructed to report for work this morning, but at noon today strike leaders were unable to state just how many were reinstated to their former positions. Thomas J. Reagan, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, stated today that in his opinion the local strikes will not be entirely settled until a settlement is reached in the New Hampshire strikes. Mr. Reagan was in Nashua, N. H., yesterday and he was informed that a great number of operatives of that city as well as of Manchester, N. H., are now employed at the International Cotton mills, the Hamilton Mfg. Co., and the Massachusetts mills of this city, and these people are anxious to get back to their home cities, but they will not leave their jobs in Lowell until the strikes in the mills where they were employed are settled. Mr. Reagan is confident that the New Hampshire strikes will be settled within a very short time, and then, he says, there will be plenty of work in Lowell for the Lowell strikers.

TURKS NOT TO ACCEPT INVITATION TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Hamid Bey Says Angora Government Cannot Accept Allied Terms—Means Demobilization of Sea of Marmora and Part of Thrace—London Papers Score Paris Near Eastern Settlement

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 24.—(By the Associated Press) Hamid Bey, representative of the Angora government in Constantinople, declared today the Allied invitation to the peace conference could not be accepted by the Turkish Nationalists on the terms laid down. "We cannot accept the allied terms because they propose to demilitarize the Sea of Marmora and part of Thrace, which would prevent us from bringing our troops from Asia to Europe," said Hamid Bey. "The terms laid down are not acceptable to the responsible element. Neither can we accept the condition that our army shall not advance while the peace conference is progressing."

"This would, so circumstances our movements that the enemy would have ample opportunity to prepare forces for a fresh attack and would give the allies a chance to complete their land and naval reinforcements in the event the conference failed."

"Regarding the straits, we already have admitted freedom for the passage of all vessels through the Dardanelles, but we are not prepared to define in what authority or body the control

FIRST GENERAL STRIKE IN AMES TOOL WORKS

NORTH EASTON, Sept. 25.—Failing to receive any reply, they say, to a written petition filed a week ago asking for the restoration of the wages that prevailed prior to a 15 per cent cut several months ago, 275 employees of the Ames Shovel & Tool Works walked out on strike early this forenoon and met in mass meeting at 10 o'clock to consider formation of a union. They have been at work under open shop conditions.

It is said to be the first general strike in the Ames works, one of the most widely known old time establishments in the district. The committee acting for the men into the response to the walkout order was practically 100 per cent.

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT

Jewish People Will Observe
Yom Kippur—Services in Synagogues

Special services will be held in the local synagogues on the day of atonement, or Yom Kippur as it is named in Hebrew, which falls due this year Monday, Oct. 2, and is observed by the Jewish people in all parts of the world with unvarying solemnity from sunset Sunday evening, Oct. 1, until sundown of Oct. 2. The day is the holiest of the year, and is observed with the same importance as is attached to this day of soul-searching and repentance. It is perhaps the most distinctly Jewish holiday of the year, one that is most pervasive and states in fullest measure the ultimate goal of the Jewish people, striving. The Messiah's fulfillment of the Jews as well as humanity's destiny is fore-visualized in the liturgy of this service.

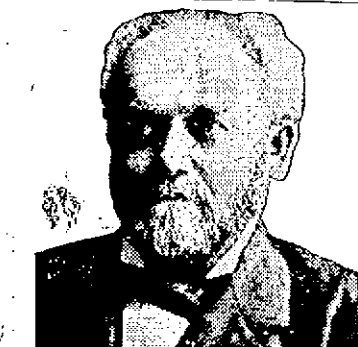

The ceremonial observance of the Day of Atonement requires the worshipers to withdraw from all worldly cares, and forgetful of the workaday affairs which have occupied him during the year, give himself up to God in thoughts of prayer and repentance. The devout tarry in the synagogue from morning till evening, abstaining from food and drink, and seek by affliction of their souls they may the better understand themselves of sin. Under the severe discipline of this introspection and fasting, the worshiper exercises a larger degree of self control in his relations with humanity and thus becomes reconciled to man and God.

Yom Kippur has a long ancestry, and like many of the holidays and ceremonials of the synagogue has undergone changes during the centuries of unbroken historical existence in which the Jews have sojourned among men. In the Middle Ages, for example, on this day the high priest in the temple performed the important function of expiation for the sanctuary, the priesthood and the people.

In contrast to this priestly monopoly of service with its external forms of expiation, the rabbis of the synagogue clothed this holiday with the mantle of piety, and invested it with the doctrines of God's mercy and paternal love.

One phase of the ritual in the modern synagogue is devoted to the remembrance of dear ones called to their eternal reward. The memorial services usually held in the afternoon of the Day of Atonement are solemn and impressive and are intended to remember not only those of the Jewish community who have passed away but to commemorate all good and noble men and women who have served the cause of humanity and increased peace in the world.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY
A horse driven by Miss Yvonne Belanger of Truett ran away in Alken avenue yesterday afternoon and as a result the driver and her companion, Mrs. Rose Lafontaine of 22 Cabot street, this city, were injured. The animal ran away at a point near the corner of West Sixth street and both women were thrown from the carriage. The horse was brought to a stop at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Alken avenue. The ambulance removed the two women to the Lowell Corporation hospital, where it was found that their injuries were not serious.

CUP OF TEA CALLS FORTH PLEASANT MEMORIES

What pleasant memories a cup of tea calls forth. As we linger with a friend over "the cup that cheers," or find refreshment in it when we weary, how little we realize the numerous and careful processes the tea plant goes through, before it is drunk as a beverage.

This thought is forcibly brought to mind by a visit to the big plant of the Salada Tea company in Boston. But before you enter this building let us go in imagination across the sea where on the beautiful island of Ceylon, the tea ardens, fragrant with white blossoms rise one above another in full perfection. The tea gardens are planted on hillsides. The higher the elevation, the better the tea. After the seed has been planted, it takes from two to three years before the plant is ready for picking. When once matured it is picked every week for a year. At the end of that time the yield is poor and the plants are subjected to a severe pruning. Owing to the matchless climate however, and a few weeks rest, the plants again send forth shoots, and in a short time are more luxuriant than ever. They are then picked as before for another year. It takes from four to five years to establish a tea garden. The difference in time depends upon the altitude at which the garden is planted. In Ceylon only owing to the peculiarities of climate is it practical to pick tea the year round. After the tea is picked it is carried to the factory and weighed. Black and green tea grow on the same bush, the difference is solely in the manner in which it is cured. If green tea is desired, the tea is taken directly from the picker's basket and steamed in a revolving machine then rolled, fired and sorted. If black tea is desired, it is carried to the withering houses and spread in thin layers on bamboo racks. When withered it is passed through a rolling machine, the object of which is to crush the leaf and liberate the juices.

The process of fermentation comes next. This is done by placing thin strips of cotton cloth soaked in cold water on the tea which has been spread out in beds. After fermentation the tea receives a second rolling, then it is fired or dried in automatic machines, after which it is ready for the sorting room. After the tea is picked over, it is sifted, then fired again and finally subjected to the simple but necessary process of bulking. This is done by putting together all tea of the same grade that has been accumulated in the bins. By this means every pound of tea is identical in quality. The tea is then packed in metal lined chests of about one hundred pounds capacity and is ready for shipment.

We are told a one pound packet of tea yields from two hundred and fifty to three hundred cups of tea. How to properly brew Salada so as to ensure a perfect cup of tea is wonderfully simple. You must first of all pour out a crockery tea pot and while it is warm put in a teaspoon of tea for every two cups, pour on freshly boiling water (but be sure it is "bubbling") and allow it to steep from five to eight minutes. Then pour it out the leaves into another warmed tea pot and serve. If poured off the leaves in this way, it will keep fragrant and delicious to the last cup.

TO ASK REVIEW OF INJUNCTION ORDER

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Donald R. Hieberg counsel for the railway shop crafts, indicated today that the next step in the shopmen's fight against the Daugherty injunction would be a petition to the United States circuit court of appeals for a review of Judge Wilkerson's order.

Hearings on the petition of 15,000 signmen for an increase in wages were opened by the railroad labor board today.

The signmen's wages were cut July 1, in a decision handed down by the board at the time it slashed the pay of the shopmen, but the signmen did not join the July 1 walkout. The cut ranged from five to seven cents an hour. Their strike vote was held in abeyance when they were granted the rehearing set for today.

Forty-two railroads and their subsidiaries are represented at the hearing.

There are 14,000,000 telephones in the United States.

Improvement in Employment Conditions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Employment conditions improved materially in 39 out of 42 important industries of the country during the month of August, as compared with July, the department of labor announced today. The largest increases in employment appeared in the "stamped ware and fertilizer industries and printing newspapers," the report said. Decreased employment occurred in those industries manufacturing tobacco products and men's clothing, and in car building and repair shops. Thirty-three of the 43 industries canvassed by government investigators indicated increases in the total amount of their payrolls for the month while nine industries registered decreases.

ONLY AMERICA CAN HEAL ILLS

Will Not Aid European Countries Until Malady of Socialism is Overcome

Dr. Von Geimenes, German Magnate, Sounds Warning—Germany Not Prosperous

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press) "The healing of Europe's ills is possible only through the aid of America, but she will not help so long as she is convinced that Germany, as well as Russia and Austria, is infected with the intellectual malady of socialism," says a statement by Dr. Carl Friedrich von Siemens, an industrial magnate, a prominent member of the Reichstag and a member of the Imperial economy council.

"If we ourselves have not the power to overcome this sickness," he warns the Germans, "then America will consider it essential that the center of epidemic be isolated and the illness permitted to abate of itself, as a lesson of warning for other peoples."

He says it appears abroad and in a large part at home, that Germany is fully prosperous and that her economic condition is improving since there is no unemployment in Germany and the demand is greater than the production; yet the contrary is actually the case. Germany is selling and exporting less than she is importing, and the foundation of her later resurrection, he declares.

One cause of "our blind economic self-weakening," he asserts, lies in the fact that the Germans continually use the mark not only as a means of exchange and compensation, but as a standard of value, although its worth has sunk to three-tenths of a pfennig.

"We can only arrive at the convalescence of our economy when we no longer use the rubber band but rather the firm yard rule as the measure of value," says the statement. "Only then can we gain the necessary credit abroad."

Dr. Von Siemens scathingly criticized socialism, declaring that "the sternest front must be presented against socialist leveling and oppression through state regulation of economies. To make further concessions to the masses, spells democracy compromised and ruined."

PUBLIC SPIRITED ACT APPRECIATED

A very kind and public-spirited act in connection with the dedicatory exercises of the Memorial Auditorium last Thursday evening, that has been somewhat lost sight of in the mass of detail necessary to its success, was performed by Benjamin Pickett, manager of the R. F. Keith theatre.

At the last moment and at very short notice, it was found necessary to obtain the services of a first class cornetist. None could be secured and finally Mr. Pickett was appealed to for aid. He conferred with his orchestra leader, William Gilmore, with the result that they willingly consented to supply their own orchestra and allow Mr. McDaniel, cornetist, to join the orchestra that was to play at the exercises for the Lowell Choral society.

Mr. McDaniel, who is one of the best cornetists in the country, learned the score rapidly and beautifully played the difficult trumpet parts in both "The Messiah" and "The Redemption" choruses. Not only did Mr. E. G. Hood, the leader, speak in the highest terms of the ability of Mr. McDaniel's work, but it was an act of public spirited co-operation on the part of Mr. Pickett and Mr. Gilmore that the Auditorium commission never will forget.

Queen Victoria of Spain was at one time an enthusiastic amateur actress, and was said to possess dramatic talent of a high order.

NEW POLITICAL LINEUP COMING

Garrison Predicts Scrapping of Republican and Democratic Parties

New Lineup of Conservatives and Radicals for Next Presidential Election

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 25.—That the two great political parties in the United States are having difficulty to find an issue upon which they can differ naturally, and that the natural outcome of the situation is likely to result in the scrapping of the republican and democratic parties in favor of a new political lineup of conservatives and radicals, is the opinion of Lindley M. Garrison, former secretary of war, who is here to attend a hearing in the United States district court.

"Despite the fact that Winfield Scott Hancock was defeated for the presidency because he said 'The tariff is a bad law,' Mr. Garrison said, 'I am inclined to believe that he was right. What is there then for partisans to quarrel about?'"

"There is, however, a very decided difference of opinion among American people regarding our constitution. I have no quarrel with that large and growing body of Americans who feel that this country has outgrown its constitution and that the time for change in our form of government has been reached. They have a legitimate right to work for the carrying out of their opinions, provided lawful measures are used. A new political alignment is imminent in America—the conservatives of both parties against the radicals."

Mr. Garrison expressed the opinion that the new parties are not likely to make their appearance before the next presidential election.

THREE ON DANGER LIST

Sacco Brothers and Albert Thornton Stabbed During Wedding Festivities

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Patrick Sacco and Marcus Sacco, brothers and Albert Thornton, all of East Boston, were on the danger list today with severe stab wounds received in a fight during wedding festivities last night. The Sacco brothers, with Thornton and Melvin Joyce, went to the house where the wedding occurred, Marcus Sacco, claiming to have an invitation was refused admission by an unknown man. He attempted to force his way into the house and was stabbed twice in the abdomen. Patrick Sacco, hearing his brother's cries, entered the hallway and grappled with the assailant, and was himself stabbed twice in the chest. Thornton was wounded by another person and collapsed.

When the police arrived, eight persons were arrested on charges of drunkenness. Santo Rocco, police claim, was taken after a patrolman had seen him throw a razor into the street.

EX-KAISER'S FIANCEE NURSE TO AIRMEN

HAARLEM, Blesin, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press) Princess Feodora of Reuss, former Empress William's fiancée, became a nurse to three airplane pilots and an American correspondent, whose airplane turned upside down while circling over her estate yesterday. Two of the men were seriously hurt.

The four aviators were carried into the hunting lodge on the estate. The princess herself, who was returning from a visit, hastened with her children to attend to their needs.

The four visitors were highly enthusiastic in their comments on the attractive appearance of the princess. The trip was taken to secure an aerial photograph of her estate.

ASKS $9,125,000 TO ENFORCE DRY LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes will seek an appropriation of $9,125,000 for the enforcement of the federal dry laws during the next fiscal year, 1924. It is said at the treasury department.

Estimates prepared for the budget carry this amount, which is approximately the same sum authorized by congress for this purpose during the current fiscal year.

The committee, officials say, are being kept to the minimum in line with the administration's policy of keeping expenses within the expectation of revenue receipts to avoid a deficit.

WANTS SIGN PLACED ON POSTOFFICE

How can a tourist or a stranger in Lowell tell the postoffice from any other public building? Postmaster Xavier A. Delisle intends to send a recommendation to the postal authorities in Washington that a sign be placed on the building so that people may be able to locate it.

The postmaster feels that an explanatory sign should be placed on the exterior of the building, as the postoffice is one of the first places a stranger heads for in order to inquire as to suitable hotels, good roads leading from the city, and other questions pertaining to their stay in the city. The postoffice is situated at a busy corner at the junction of two important traffic arteries and a great number of tourists pass there in their morning rush to get their mail. The postoffice has letters to their friends from various cities on their itinerary and as present conditions are, there is no way of telling the postoffice.

Postmaster Delisle intends to remedy this condition and have a suitable marker on the building that will acquaint strangers with what public department is housed within its walls. He expects to receive a satisfactory reply to his recommendation which will result in the placing of a marker on the postoffice building.

America—Radio Hub of World

(By N.E.A. Service)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—America, the radio hub of the world! Increased activity in the construction of radio stations throughout the world, for the reception of messages from the United States, promises to add this distinction to the many now held by this country.

This conclusion is made from an account of the world-wide operations undertaken by American radio firms, presented by P. E. Nagle, communications expert of the United States department of commerce in "Commerce Reports."

"Every American communication company," writes Nagle, "is actively engaged in the construction of additional facilities and in plans for new routes and methods for the improvement of operation conditions."

Before this expansion can be undertaken, however, corresponding stations must be erected abroad. This, says Nagle, is dependent on the development of the radio industry in each foreign country concerned. The fact that radio across the sea is either a government or private monopoly is considered a hindrance to American expansion there.

But most of the Latin-American countries permit the erection of foreign owned radio stations in their territories. Direct communication between Europe and Latin America, therefore, will be possible with the completion of the Buenos Ayres station in about a year, and of a Rio de Janeiro station within two years.

Until these and other high powered stations are completed, radio business will depend on co-operative efforts of the navy department and various commercial companies.

Lines Out

"Regular radio service," reports Nagle, "is now maintained by commercial companies between the United States and the Hawaiian Islands, Japan, Norway, the United Kingdom, Germany and France, and by land wire distribution from many of these countries to points beyond. In addition the United States navy maintains a service in handling commercial traffic to the Philippine Islands, China, Siberia, Siam, Dutch East Indies, portions of Australia, Italy and Belgium."

"American radio companies are also developing systems of radio communication with Central America, with New Orleans as the center."

"A new high power station is in course of construction in Poland, another is nearing completion near Christiania, and various others are projected in the smaller European countries. A new high power station has just been completed at St. Assise, France, which is designed to communicate chiefly with the United States, replacing the Lafayette station at Bordeaux. With this station and with those at Christiania and Warsaw, communication will be direct with the United States."

20,000 STATIONS IN 11 YEARS

Since its inception, July 1, 1911, the government radio service of the department of commerce has licensed nearly 4000 commercial and 16,000 amateur radio stations in the United States.

Originally organized to enforce the wireless ship act of 1910, this service has expanded until now it supervises all radio stations, on land and sea, that have obtained their licenses in the United States. Its work has increased to such an extent that it has had to be subdivided among other departments.

The enforcement of the ship radio laws now is under control of the bureau of navigation of the department of commerce. Radio inspectors assigned to each principal seaport, see that every ship subject to the law has the proper radio equipment before sailing.

The bureau of navigation also regulates commercial and other land stations and sees that they comply with the rules of the international radio-telegraph convention of 1912.

For facility in regulation and inspection there are nine radio inspection districts embracing the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska. An inspector is responsible for the proper control of each district.

POULIN TO TAKE STAND TODAY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 25.—With taking of testimony in the trial of Harry Poulin, charged by Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, with the paternity of her 10 months' old child nearing completion, indications were that the climax in the case would be reached today when the defendant takes the stand in an effort to establish his innocence. The foundation for an alibi for Poulin has been furnished by relatives, who testified they saw him at church on the nights he is alleged by Mrs. Tiernan to have been in her company.

CROP YIELDS AND PRICES DISAPPOINTING

WAKEFIELD, Sept. 25.—Crop yields and prices received this season have been somewhat disappointing to farmers of New England, according to a bulletin issued today by the local branch of the United States department of agriculture.

"The heavy, damaging rains in June hurt Maine potatoes. Connecticut valley onions and tobacco," the bulletin adds. "Lack of rain later restricted Aroostook county potatoes further, while continued wet weather did further damage to onions and tobacco as well as to hay and grain. However, grains, especially oats in Aroostook and some other places and hay generally, gave excellent yields."

"Fruit crops in Massachusetts are much better than last year; somewhat better in the other states except Maine. The general abundance of United States crops has caused prices to trend downward, but the upward swing of general business should help to offset this drift to some extent through greater buying power in consuming centers."

RECORD ENROLLMENT AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 25.—Harvard university reopened today for its 287th year with an enrollment both in college and in the graduate schools probably the largest in its history. All freshmen class figures were expected to be broken when registration was completed. The number to attend the university this year was estimated at about 6000.

New departments opening for the first time included the Harvard School of Public Health and the Theological School, formed by agreement last June between the Harvard authorities and the trustees of Andover Theological Seminary. In the former Dr. Roger I. Lee will serve as acting dean until the return next spring of Dr. David L. Edsall, who is abroad. Rev. William L. Sperry is the dean of the divinity school.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET TOMORROW

Plans Completed for Opening of the State Convention in Springfield

Sen. David I. Walsh to Be Permanent Chairman — Draw up Platform Tonight

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 25.—The platform on which William A. Gaston, as democratic nominee for United States senator, and John F. Fitzgerald, as democratic nominee for governor, together with other party candidates will seek in the forthcoming state election to supplant the republican incumbents will be drawn up in tentative form here tonight. Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, who was selected as chairman of the committee on resolutions, was one of the first of the advance guard to the democratic state convention of tomorrow to arrive here.

The convention will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Municipal Auditorium. It will have as permanent presiding officer, United States Senator David I. Walsh and as temporary presiding officer, Mayor James M. C. Coffey. After the ratification of the candidates chosen in the recent primaries, and adoption of the platform for their campaign, its only business will be the selection of members of the state committee.

Leaders in the city today said there was every indication of harmony, and that in all probability no disturbing factor would be introduced.

The bride was attired in white canton crepe with veil caught up with lilies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. She was given away by her father, Mr. Basile Mainville, while the groom was attended by his father. At the close of the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom's parents, 88 Ford street, and this afternoon the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to New York, Worcester and North Adams. or themselves from the leathers which graced their pedal extremities, turn their sport coats as they should not be worn and do a marathon around the track. So far, so good, mused the nineteen twenty sixers, but the worst was yet to come.

A Ford racer, bearing a New York number plate of the property of a lordly senior conveniently came to the conclusion that its tires needed air, and as the freshman apparently needed exercise, following tedious journeys to the Spindle City, they were unhesitatingly nominated and elected to show their skill at providing the necessary air. They pumped and pumped and then pumped some more, but they did it good naturedly, giving every evidence that they had inhaled the spirit of the occasion.

Like Tarzan of the apes, the advanced students armed themselves with improvised paddles and clubs containing everything but nails, and the grand march of the barefoot boys was on. With a group of roughly equal freshmen and others in the lead, a wheelbarrow of ancient lineage with its burden of shoes, good and otherwise, following, the procession snake-danced down Moody street to Pawtucket where the signal for the rebel dispersal was given. A "break" occurred and the yet untamed freshmen darted in all directions, only to be captured in a most unceremonious manner. The second, third and fourth year men did not carry their wooden implements for ornaments and as a result every mother's son of the innocent fresh contingent received a warning caption where Huck Finn's pants were wont to rip in the days of yore.

Down Merrimack street, the marchers scolded, the delinquents being gently reminded to remain in the picture with their brothers in distress. At city hall, Dan Garrett, a freshman, made a frantic dash for the sacred portals of the municipal building and succeeded to a certain extent in making good his escape, that same certain extent being his eventual return to the rank and file of the infantile parade. Occasionally dissension broke loose among the upper-classmen themselves and several Jock Dempsonian blows exchanged. The frequent combats ended satisfactorily, however, and all knees reversed to o.k.s. It seemed that some of the boys took their upper-lip for freshmen and began to whale away with night and main, only to come at last to the satisfactory understanding that a case of mistaken identity had occurred.

Merrimack square and Page's clock finally came into view and here the 1922 crew took their last stand on the hill. Dan Garrett, a freshman, was elevated to the rostrum and gave a "timely" speech, extolling the merits of the seniors, juniors and sophomores to the skies and sending the freshmen, by repeated request, to blades and its suburbs. Dan Garrett and Bill Brownman, both of Lowell, shared pretty nothing but the "How Dry I Am" and "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." And the "song" emphasized its approval of the songster's efforts by conferring on them a shower of sawdust. Thus did the performance conclude and the shoeless, breathless freshmen cheered in unison for the famous textile school of Lowell.

notified Agent Richardson of the Immigrant society, but that the police arrived in the meantime. The neighbor added that the girl had been taken by neighbors and given shelter and food for the past few days.

The little girl, sad-eyed and shy, was called to the stand and Judge Knight kindly invited her up on the bench. She said she drew from the child a most heart-rending story. The child said that she had been beaten and that she was sent out and had purchased moonshine for her parents. She said, in reply to a question as to where she obtained the illicit liquor, that she had bought it in many different places and from many different people.

The parents were then brought on to testify. They declared that neither of them had been intoxicated and that they had never sent their daughter after moonshine. The man testified that he had been given a half-pint of "shine" by another party.

The court then asked if it wasn't so that the couple had been receiving food from the city and going out and selling it. They both denied this allegation. The mother said the child bought the "shine" for her parents.

Was Fined $50
Andrew Blanchard was fined $50 for operating an auto while under the influence of liquor. The case was a continued one. Blanchard said that he had been to a party and had taken a drink and was sorry that he bumped into another machine. He said that he had no money to pay the damage whereupon prosecuting officials recommended that the minimum fine of $20 be imposed as the men had made good for all damage.

The court, however, was of a different frame of mind, said: "If a man gets drunk and operates an auto while under the influence of liquor he should be punished severely and not let off as lightly is possible. If he has made restitution, it is nothing more than he would have to do in a civil court. If this case went to the superior court he would be convicted as there was damage done. I don't intend to allow these violators to get off with the lightest possible sentence. Order him to pay a fine of $50, Mr. Clerk." The drunkenness case was filed and the defendant was placed on probation until Saturday with the understanding that he would make good the fine.

Olivia Bourgeois of Draught pleaded guilty to drunkenness. He was held in $200 bonds until Oct. 4. The court said that any man who drove his family out of the house, as the defendant was charged with doing, ought to go to jail.

Thomas Sofas pleaded guilty to illegal keeping and paid a fine of $100. Joseph H. Hebert pleaded guilty to an illegal sale and paid a like amount. Fred Merrill was charged with operating an auto so as to endanger the lives of the public and operating without a registration in his possession. The case was continued until Saturday. Merrill was arrested on Merrimack street, near Allen last night by Motorcycle Officer Daniel Lynch. The officer said this morning that he was charged with doing, ought to go to jail.

certain parts of his testimony, together with other complications that came up the court continued the case until Wednesday during which time he said that he would think over the matter.

A Man Named "Joe"

According to the testimony of Lipps, he works in a repair shop in one portion of a building and a partition separates his shop from a garage. He said that a man named "Joe" whose last name he did not know, frequently came to the premises selling liquor. In answer to a query, he said that he had loved "Joe" came from Boston. On the day in which the raid was made Lipps testified that "Joe" drove up to the garage and asked him if he wanted any liquor. Lipps inquired as to the kind and price, finally buying a case for $75. He said that "Joe" had several other cases stored in the back of a large touring car. The raiding officers found the case under a work bench in Lipps' repair shop.

When interrogated as to how the broken boxes came into his possession and what they were used for, Lipps replied that he was given the boxes for firewood and understood that they contained alcohol which was transferred from one machine to another after being taken from the boxes.

The court then threw a bomb-shell into the affair by saying that a certain woman had come to him and asked to have the place in question investigated as she alleged that her husband was engaged in the illicit rum-running game. Lipps said that he didn't know anything about that. He contended that what was in the case of the garage was none of his affair and that the garage was conducted by another person.

The broken up boxes were produced, together with a sample of the whiskey and here certain marks and dates. One of the dates on the boxes was "Sept. 2," the day on which the raid was made. When asked why the court should explain the marking, Lipps replied that he knew nothing about the marks and that they might have been made on the boxes by the police officers as sort of a memo for the date of the raid.

According to one member of the raiding party the squad was all set for a big haul on the day the raid was made as it was pretty sure that a load was coming in to the transfer point. After the officers had swooped down and searched the place three or four other places in the vicinity were searched as it was thought that the runners had been tipped off in advance and cached the load in some other place. The alleged big load was not found.

BOOSTING THE PARTY

At the republican convention on Saturday, the leaders assembled to adopt a platform and as usual at the opening of a campaign to proclaim to the world that the party achievements are unparalleled, that prosperity abounds and that it is the result of the policies of the republican party. Vice President Coolidge was drafted to take a leading part in the glorification of the administration and considering the basis he had to work up, he did a fine job.

In dealing with the "achievements" of the present do-nothing administration, the vice president could not be very specific and, therefore, astute politician that he is, he confined himself mainly to the enactment of the tariff law and that alone was enough to defend. He lauded the administration for the maintenance of peace. The war ceased in Nov. 11, 1918 and it would appear that the republicans claim credit for the fact that it did not start up again.

It was regarded as a wonderful achievement that after nearly three years in control of congress a tariff bill was passed "over almost insurmountable obstacles." In a congress with a vast republican majority why should there be such "insurmountable obstacles" if the bill were not a mass of defects? It was the unprecedented surrender of the tariff framers to the predatory interests that cause such vigorous opposition; but the republicans managed to whip the recalcitrants into line so as to secure a majority sufficient to put the bill across.

Senator Lodge says it has extended the free list over that of any tariff bill hitherto passed; but various experts assert that the tariff on wool is monstrous and that it will add from $2.50 to $7.00 to the price of a suit of woolen clothes. The arguments of Senator Walsh and other authorities on this point offer conclusive refutation of Senator Lodge's statement. Col. E. M. House, who is conversant with the various tariff laws that have been in force during the past twenty years, says this law will cost the people of the country much more in a few years than the bonus bill would have cost had it been enacted. Besides, it will prevent our European debtors from paying us what they owe. They cannot pay in gold but could pay in commodities if the tariff were moderate.

Former Speaker Joseph Walker made an effort to check the reactionary policies represented by Senator Lodge; but although he lost, there were about 100 delegates who upheld his main contention.

Senator Lodge repeated the republican claim that the administration had effected a saving of $1,600,000,000 a year since it assumed control of congress. This claim is based upon the fact that the scaling down of expenses from the war period, came as naturally as the rain falls from the clouds and the reduction so effected is claimed by republicans to be due to their economic policies, all of which is a misrepresentation of the facts. The departments were run as usual, but there was a natural elimination of certain war activities and the winding up of needless tail ends of the service. It was simply the gradual process of getting back to normal conditions. This was not a saving as Senator Lodge claims. There could be no justification of maintaining departments on a war basis for years after the war had been ended. It appears from this statement by Senator Lodge that he was hard pressed for material with which to boost his party. He made no mention of the bonus, which his party defeated, nor did he mention the Four-Pact treaty under which the government has destroyed a number of war vessels, although the treaty has not been ratified by some of the principal signatory powers.

The convention had to adopt a platform for election purposes and it included certain pledges which may or may not be fulfilled as they, too, were adopted to catch votes. The action of the administration on the bonus shows how little republican campaign pledges are worth.

SCHOOL AND SHOP WORK

Franklin D. Cushing, president of the Massachusetts child labor commission, which has headquarters at No. 6, Beacon street, Boston, has an interesting communication in a current issue of the Fall River Evening News, in which he attempts to survey the "school and work problem." We are glad to see that he makes a special plea to parents to let their children attend the public schools and keep on attending no long as it is possible for them to do so, says Mr. Cushing:

"It ought not to be a difficult question (for the parents) to decide since all the evidence is in favor of the school. Industry can offer little to offset the irreparable loss of a year's education. Wages have fallen and good positions are few and far between. Openings with a future are not being filled with 14 and 15-year-old boys and girls who have only a meagre education, but by older workers with training. Only 11 per cent of the children under 16 hold positions in skilled trades. Young people with inadequate education drift about from job to job, and are often unemployed for long periods at a time."

We are informed that an investigation recently made by the Massachusetts child labor committee showed that over three-fifths of the children change their positions before they reach 16 and average less than three months to a position.

As Mr. Cushing says, those children who stay in school "reap dividends of increased power which more than make up for the temporary sacrifice." It isn't always a question of dollars and cents. Education is a preparation for life itself, more than it is for earning a living. The Cushing letter concludes:

"The time is not far distant when the state will protect itself by requiring every boy and girl to remain in school until 16. If the people elect legislators with vision this fall, such a law will be passed when the general court convenes in January. In the meantime every influence must be exerted to return to the schools as many as possible of the children whom the law now allows to go to work."

THE MATERNITY ACT

Bay State men and women who are campaigning lustily against the absurd "maternity act" are being commended right and left in other New England states for their accurate judgment and quick sense of respect for the rights of the state.

The Hartford Courant, in a recent issue, declares strongly that the state of Massachusetts has "done a fine thing in beginning its action against the maternity act, sentimentally worked through congress by a scheming minority. Says the Courant, in winding up a short article of denunciation of the act as it is written and, therefore, must have its being if it has the stamp of approval of the unthinking and careless voters."

"It is time for the states to stand up for the right. To be sure they are late about it. The centralizing has gone too far already, but this

A Thought

Is that is proud exalts up himself; pride is his own glass, his own trumpet, his own chronicle; and whatever praise itself but in the deed devours the deed in its praise.—Shakespeare.

Wouldn't Give Me Up

Miss Madge was making her first trip in a train. The ticket collector came along and called for the ticket. Madge readily gave up her ticket. The collector stopped at a station and a station boy came down the aisle calling, "Chocolates!" "Never," cried Madge bravely. "You can take my ticket, but not my chocolates!"—New York Mail.

'Twas Quite Safe

A man entered a crowded railway carriage and placed a heavy box, almost a small trunk, on the parcels rack. A nervous passenger was sitting next him and he looked at the bulky package and fearing it would fall on him, said: "I say, do you think it's quite safe?" "O, yes," responded the other cheerfully; "It's locked!"—London Answers.

Trustworthy Employee

The tramp knocked at the farm house door and asked for the farmer. "Is that the real name of the man who was asked for a job?" "Yes, you can have a job," said the farmer. "You could gather eggs for me if you are really honest and steady." The tramp choked with gratitude and emotion. "Sir," he said, "you could trust me with any mortal thing on earth. For 20 years I was manager of a bathhouse and I never took a single bath!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Getting It Right

The elderly spinster's amazement, the young man in the sitting room suddenly threw himself upon his knees as he entered. "Miss O'Rourke," said he, "will you be my wife?" "Yes," Mr. Smith replied, who was giving breath. "But, really, I thought all along you had serious designs on my younger sister." "I have," was the rejoinder, as the youth rose to his feet. "I'm only practicing now!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Today's Word

Today's word, in lexicography, is pronounced "lu-ku-hu-ku" with no accent somewhat upon the first, but more strongly upon the third syllable. It means the act of leveling by leveling light, hence, "leveling the playing field" or "leveling the ground." It comes from Latin "luquere," to work by lamp, originally from "luc" light. It is used like this: "Judging from what one reads in the sporting prints, it would appear that the nation's undergraduates are interested at present in the progress of their respective varsity football squads than in academic education."

The Only Smaller

When a dog is pleased he wags his tail and flaps his ears—but he can't smile. A horse expresses his sense of well-being by rubbing his head on your shoulder and neighing—but he can't smile. Birds chirp, cats purr, and when his head is high and his roosters crow, monkeys swing from trees, bees hum—but man in the only member of the so-called animal kingdom that smiles. That's where he has it on every living creature. When man is well pleased he can smile, and even when he isn't pleased he can give a pretty good imitation of a smile.—Nogales Herald.

Could Afford To Tell

"Once again my orders have been disobeyed," said the public schoolmaster sternly. "Who is the miscreant?" Not a boy, and not a girl, and no single student. "This matter shall be settled once and for all," continued the master in the same icy manner, "and if none will tell, every boy in the class shall be thrashed." Every boy, therefore, was duly thrashed, but not one would breathe the culprit's name, until suddenly the last boy was about to receive his share of punishment, the cane was withheld. Fixing a keen look on the last, the master said: "Now, if you will tell me who committed this indiscretion, I will not punish you." "All right, sir; I did it," came the hesitating reply.

Stopping the Bus

It was Sunday morning, and the conductor, as his bus rattled along, was not quite so wide awake as usual. At all events, he didn't observe the small boy who dashed out of a house, shouting, "Hi, there, stop!" It was only when a passenger had prodded him in the leg that the official became aware of the pursuing boy. Stop the bus for the boy, conductor, ordered the driver. The conductor looked disapprovingly at the boy, but decided that he had better put up. "Now, then, shaver, hop on," he said, when the boy panted up. "Who are you calling 'shaver'?" inquired the youth scornfully. "An' what'd you mean by runnin' away from customers?" "Err, mother was in a 'panicle for this penny. She's gone' to church!"

At Even

Hush ye! Hush ye! My babe is sleeping. Hush, ye winds that are full of sorrow! Hush, ye rains, from your weary wings! Give him slumber until tomorrow. Hush ye, yet! In the years hereafter, Surely sorrow is in the air. Tears shall be in the place of laughter. Give him peace for a while in sleeping. Hush ye, hush! He is weak and all-weak; Bend his mother his share of weeping. Hush ye, winds, from your endless wailing; Hush ye, hush ye; my babe is sleeping!—By FRÉDÉRIC MANNING in "The New Poetry"

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

It seems that the boys around East Merrimack street have not yet been led to understand that they cannot abuse the Auditorium building by making a playground of the grass or romping on the steps and climbing around the stone moldings as they were Saturday night, in a manner that indicated total disregard for the building and for the police authority supposed to have some concern in preventing any damage to the building or the grounds. Saturday evening a crowd of young urchins ranging from 11 to 16 years of age were playing on the grounds in a very mischievous manner and when driven from one doorway they simply moved to another and continued their performance. It seems that the custodian of the building or the trustees if necessary, should request Superintendent Atkinson of the police department to issue instructions to the officers of the heat in that locality to impress upon the youngsters that they will not be allowed to damage this building or the grounds by any form of play, mischievous or otherwise. This should also be impressed upon the minds of the parents of the man in charge of the building who will not be continually annoyed by having to drive off the youngsters who think that it is their special privilege to scratch and deface and mark with chalk every building in the city and to trample down even the most delicate shrubbery planted in keeping that have been made beautiful at considerable expense. It is very plain that the children in the vicinity of the Memorial Auditorium will have to be impressed with the fact that while they are free to play upon the walks, they are prohibited from doing anything to deface the shrubbery and to scratch or deface the doors or the walls of the building.

The Lowell Ad club has a rival but entirely of its own creation. The club is doing their best in keeping Lowell on the map. Witness the large number of horsemen who circled away from Lowell every summer, popping up regularly at all the nearby country fairs and race meets and letting folks know they are from the Spauld Club. It is a good thing for Lowell that they are from the Spauld Club. I never saw more Lowell men anywhere than at a summer at an out-of-town gathering of good citizens than those I can into and talked with over at the Orono fair on Friday and Saturday last. I learned while there, that several Lowell men and a goodly number of women were in the crowd and let everyone know where they came from. Brockton is to be well represented, too, I am told. It has been good advertising for this city as well as rounding out a record for widespread road-fellowship. The country fairs are a big aid in creating good citizenship and new friends. Lowell citizens are doing their part in rallying around the banners of the rural cousin, who always like to see them bustle along and say hello.

A Chelmsford reader informs me that the long range all-day harvest exhibition, dinner and evening celebration on Sept. 27 will offer a very attractive entertainment menu for not only the townspeople, but all "old-timers" who frequently return to Chelmsford on that day and renew old acquaintances. There will be a handsome exhibit of garden produce and home-made goods of every sort, all in the usual profusion and well worth seeing. My friend tells me, Chelmsford folks always give visitors a royal welcome. The grape celebration Wednesday will make that fact forcibly evident once more, I am sure.

You haven't forgotten that little one-track rail line that runs down between the buildings lying in the Middle and Market street territory, have you? A handy freight service ally for the big business concerns in that block of good-sized buildings. Well, the Boston & Maine has been "fixing up" along this line recently. The latest improvement is the erection of new little swinging wooden wheels that shoot out horizontally a little over the height of an ordinary box car. These poles are put there to nudge any absent-minded brakeman who may be riding on a car of switchers and forgets to lower his head when he comes to a "low bridge." These little sliding poles are very light, of new wood and swing easily in the breeze all the time, but they are mighty useful in protecting human life, as all knights of the rail can tell you.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT AT AUDITORIUM

In connection with the agricultural exhibit, which is to be held in the Auditorium on Thursday afternoon and evening of this week under the auspices of the North Middlesex Agricultural society, the committee is trying to arrange matters whereby a similar exposition, to be held in Chelmsford relative to church day by the grange of that town, will be brought to Lowell for the benefit of the local public. The committee has also communicated with Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, to make arrangements for school children to contribute garden flowers and home products to the exhibit. The general public is also invited to display agricultural products of every description. There will be special music during the exhibit and all goods will be donated to charitable institutions at the conclusion of the affair.

EVERYBODY BACK ON STANDARD TIME

The city is back on standard time today, following yesterday's slight confusion relative to church day by the return of standard time came at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, but few people remained awake that late to regulate their time-piece. Most of the people just turned the clock back an hour before retiring Saturday night. Many of these were today Sunday that they did not advance the hands eleven hours, for clocks with striking apparatus were on a dizzy rampage most of the day.

The fifth consecutive year of daylight saving was terminated in this state with the changing of the clocks yesterday, the schedule having become effective at last Sunday in April and terminating the last Sunday in September.

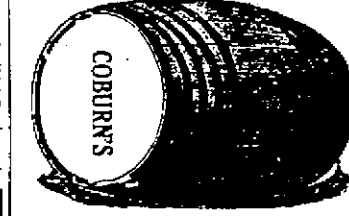

Reports are few where people made mistakes and forgot to adjust time-pieces for with four years of experience, most knew just what to do and took the matter of changing clocks in much the same manner that they did giving presents at Christmas time.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem THE ENCHANTED FOREST

They say that the Forest of Arden
Is peopled with Youth alone!
When the arteries start to harden,
When grizzled the hair has grown,
No more in these haunts of wonder
Shall you wander the pathways sweet,
No more shall you saunter under
The shade where the branches meet.

But, the Forest was made for lovers,
And there is no age to love,
And the same enchantment lovers
In the heart and spirit of
Whoever still knows the glory
Which glows in his loved one's eyes,
And the thrill of the old, old story
The spell of which never dies.

They say—and their words are truthful—
That the Forest of Arden's made
For those who are blithe and youthful
To linger beneath its shade;
But you shall find gray-haired sages
Its dells and its glens among,
For lovers may be all ages
But love is forever young.

International Conference in December

BRUSSELS, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—An international conference to consider reparations, inter-allied debts and a loan to Germany, probably will be called for early in December, it is learned. The Belgian government, while it has not yet been asked by the allies to issue invitations, regards the summoning of such a meeting as certain. The December date was proposed so as to await the result of the Anglo-American negotiations for debt funding and to afford time in which to induce the United States to participate.

Judge Removed; Result of Liquor Ruling

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 25.—Judge J. R. Johnson of St. Lucie county, who recently ruled that state authorities should make no arrests in prohibition cases unless the liquor involved had been determined by analysis to be intoxicating, has been removed from office by Governor Hardee. The removal order, it was learned today, was signed Saturday after more than 1500 county resident had signed a petition asking the removal of both the judge and County Prosecutor Carpenter, because alleged laxity in law enforcement.

Why Buy Any Other Range Than The Crawford Range?

There are other good ranges, it is true, but the Crawford has in its construction all that makes the other ranges good. And besides it has many other things that make it more desirable. A range of the above style with the ash pan in the base instead of in front takes less space and, having a shelf at the front end of top instead of an ash pan, it gives you more room on the top for kettles, and gives you a far better balanced design and better looking range. Another thing that makes it better is the asbestos lined oven; it not only keeps the heat in the oven, but equalizes it and makes the oven bake evenly on all sides. Top, bottom, sides and ends will be baked evenly. All the fine strip or partition as well as the oven plates are cup jointed in the Crawford Ranges. This makes for better and quicker draft. This can be illustrated by anyone smoking a corn cob pipe. Let him try to smoke it with a loose stem in the bowl and then push the stem in tight. He will know what a cup flue joint does in a range—"draws better."

The damper (the Crawford has only one, all other ranges have two) is far more simple. It is on top of the range. Not under the top. It is in plain sight, and not one that you have to close or open entirely, but one that you can open and close as much or as little as you want. It is marked Kindle, Check, Bake, so a child that understands the meaning of these three words can run a Crawford Range. And many other improvements that it would take too much space to explain make the Crawford more desirable, and when you consider that the Crawford Range, size for size, style for style and weight for weight costs no more than other makes without all those advantages, that certainly must make the Crawford Range better, and as we give you as easy terms of payment as you can get on any range—

WHY SHOULD YOU BUY ANY OTHER RANGE?

Come in anyway and look it over. If we can't convince you that the Crawford will do the work better and with less fuel and it is the range that you should buy, why, we won't be any worse friends. Priced from $52.00 to $246.50.

Greenwich Village Follies Great Success

THREE OF THE STARS IN THE GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES: LUCILLE CHALANT AND JULIA SILVERS AND (BELOW) DELLA VANNA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—After a month of new shows in which one theatre has competed with another for the booby prize awarded to the dull and stupid, there has at last come to Broadway a real show jammed with delight, beauty, humor—a gorgeous evening from start to finish.

Herewith the hat is tossed into the air and the reviewer rushes down Broadway hawking raves of applause. John Murray Anderson's production of the Greenwich Village Follies is far and away the best thing of the season—a revue of beauty and gaiety, gorgeous sets and rib-cracking humor. Fresh from the orchestra seat, we ly ribald Brennan and Savoy burlesque, and finally endangered the health and life of every person in the audience by sending them into convulsions by ordering John Hazzard, fourth king, an illustration to sing "Good-By to Dear Old Alaska" after the fashion of the movie picture theatres of our ancestors. The slides were by Rubie Goldberg.

The humor throughout is the kind we most enjoy—the rough and ribald coolness of the Brennan and Savoy and Rubie Goldberg type. It is this particular humor—it was also carried out in the overture and intermission curtains by Reginald Marsh and Cleon Throckmorton—that lent itself, to sharp contrasts with the delicate beauty of the Anderson sets.

The high points are hard to select. The adaptation of the Oscar Wilde story, "The Nightingale and the Rose" stands shoulder to shoulder with the Ziegfeld "Frolicking Gods" as the peak of its particular type of theatrical art.

Frankie Heath certainly deserves a line by herself. This young lady, lately snared from vaudeville, is overflowing with personality—she tossed it in fistfuls at the audience when she sang "Atta Boy" and "I Love to Sit and Think of Me."

Carl Randall's dancing, the masterly arrangement of the incidental music for the ballet scenes, toe-dancing by Ula Sharon, the beauty of the chorus, the two Russian dancers, Suehan's imitation of Ballet in the Chauve Souris burlesque, the songs, "A Kiss From a Red-Headed Miss" and "Sixty Seconds Every Minute," were among the brightest colors in the Anderson design.

FREAK HORSE AT FORT HILL PARK ZOO

What is it? You tell 'em! Tom Braden, chief supporter and benefactor of the people's own Barnum & Bailey at the little me agree on the Fort Hill park, can't tell you. Alex Chagnon, who runs the open-air stables up there on the hillside overlooking the tanneries, throws his hands up when you ask him about it.

Here comes Ben Dugan. Does he know? Ben has a shovel and wheelbarrow, the latter loaded with fresh English hay for a big Shetland pony over in the far corner of the big animal cage. "Don't ask me; I didn't raise him!" was Ben's terse reply.

The Sun horse expert decided to go to headquarters up in White River Junction, Vt., where the new zoo freak came from originally. But the trail was lost there.

A stray midway man had him first, but his origin is missing. Mr. Braden got him from the midway man for a few dollars, and brought him to Lowell the other day. Fort Hill park is the new "find" harbor of safety from no-man's-land, thanks to Mr. Braden's generosity.

This puzzle up there in the Fort Hill animal cage right next to the black bear, that has a nice little yard all his own much to his discomfort, is attracting a lot of attention. The Sun man managed to corner Mr. Braden during one surprisingly quiet hour at the Union station today, and discovered that:

This animal is a dwarf horse of uncertain origin and breed, weighs 72 pounds on his hoofs, each about the size of a Waterbury watch case, and is believed to be a little more than seven years old.

Visitors are traveling up the park hillside daily to see the new zoo addition.

"Just be a dwarf Shetland."

"Just a dwarf horse."

"Look at his eyes!"

So it goes. Babies find as much fun following the little freak around the cage and patting it on the nose when it comes over to the wire in a friendly trot, as the older folks, who can't quite make out what sort of a breed this little fellow would claim to be if he could talk.

It's a member of the family of Morgan or some other strain all right, or looks like one, but of course there's no mighty strain of blue blood in this youngster with the toy feet.

He has stopped growing now, except around the ribs, where the flesh is bulging out excessively, something like a toy balloon, from the upland clover, the fine corn and mellow shorts that Chagnon and his men carry into the little menagerie dining parlors three times a day.

Strangers in town call this freak a "pony," but it isn't. When a man with Braden's reputation in the horse world can't explain the puzzle that accompanies this Fort Hill exhibit, then it's going some. And Tom says he is also a member of the Want to Know club.

The lively, chunky little seven-year-old what-is-it is a prize package movie, a picture for spectators every day. Some call the color of the toy animal a bay, others have it seal brown. The hair isn't long—just the ordinary length of an outdoor creature. There are four white ankles and a short brown mane, very thick. The tail drops to the heels and is streaked with white and gray hairs, with dark brown strands mixed in.

The hoofs are the wonder of all, if you allow a little something for the large, round, peculiarly colored eyes that stare at you like an Alaskan image that Roy Stewart writes about in his Yukon yarns.

Those eyes startle you. They are piercing—like queer little spots all over the orbs, and appear to be glazed over as if the freak were totally blind, although such is not the case.

Let's get back to those four hoofs. You could place one of them upon a watch-case and hardly cover it. You could put them, one at a time, in a teacup, and then it wouldn't be full up.

Over Gorham street way is a Lowell blacksmith who is noted for his live-ounce shoes for local race horses. If he had to make a pair of shoes for this park menagerie freak, the shoes wouldn't weigh more than an ounce apiece.

The freak horse is going to have excellent winter quarters, at present, the little stable is well furnished and stables go. The bedding is a foot thick, the open stall big enough to roll around in.

If this Braden generosity and patronage keeps on, Lowell will have a zoo one of these days that will be worth advertising on those chambers of commerce circulars about the sights worth seeing in this town of ours.

Beauty Unsurpassed

Amazing Facts Fully Explain Tanlac Success

How 30,000,000 Bottles Were Sold in Less Than Eight Years—Big Worcester Druggists Enthusiastic—Thousands of Users Publicly Endorse It

The tremendous demand for Tanlac continues unabated, ever-increasing. Millions have rallied to its standard, unsolicited, and thousands have given public endorsement. That the large druggists everywhere are enthusiastic over this sensation of the trade is evidenced by the letters received with orders.

W. A. Hoyer & Co., wholesale druggists of Denver, Colo., writing under date of July 17, state: "We are submitting today our order for the fourth carload of your goods since April 1. Taking into consideration local conditions this demand is not only exceptional but alone in the record sales for proprietary articles in this section."

On August 14th Brewster & Co., Inc., large wholesalers of Worcester, Mass., wrote: "Tanalac is our best selling proprietary. The demand is steadily increasing, and we anticipate a continued growth in volume of sales."

Since the first of the year it has been necessary to establish two new branch offices, one in New York and one in Los Angeles, and the large modern laboratories at Dayton, O., Walkersville, Canada, and Mexico City are working over-time but are still unable to keep up with the deluge of orders. Tanlac has been on the market less than eight years but more than 30,000,000 bottles have been sold to date.

And the foreign field has been entered with the most phenomenal success. Mexico now knows Tanlac as well as the people of the United States and Canada, while Cuba has received the celebrated medicine with enthusiasm.

The reason for this amazing demand is found in one word: merit. No proprietary article could long survive its acid test of time and public trial if it did not possess real value and produce actual and positive results. It cannot depend merely on whitewash advertising and "first call" appeal. Heck of Tanlac's unimpaired record in the drug trade is Tanlac's success in producing results, and when this fact is thoroughly impressed there cannot possibly be any mystery in Tanlac's achievement in gaining a short time—the achievement of gaining the top of the heap and holding undisputed leadership over all preparations of its type ever produced.—Adv.

Notice that some of the horsemen are equipped as regular troopers while others have the nondescript accoutrements of irregulars, brigands and marauders who attached themselves to the Turkish chief as he crossed Asia Minor.

Why Pretty Teeth

Are shown everywhere today

Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten. Note how people show them as they never did before.

Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.

Fight dingy film

One object is to fight the film on teeth—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles, under old ways of teeth cleaning.

New ways found

Then dental science found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film combatants.

Five effects

But Pepsodent brings five effects. These are very important. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's ever-present tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film adheres less readily.

You see them now nearly the world over

These glistening teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Mendel Beiliss, Jewish workman of Kiev, Russia whose trial in 1913 on a charge of ritual murder attracted world wide attention, is a resident of New York. It was learned from Palestine where he went after his acquittal in Russia.

Hellis, the only Jew in a city of 10,000 people, was arrested in 1911 after the discovery of the body of a 13-year-old boy who had been murdered. Official charges were that he had killed the boy to obtain blood for religious ritual purposes. He was kept in a dungeon for two years and then placed on trial. At the end of 30 days the jury freed him after two hours' deliberation. The supreme court there at St. Petersburg gave the verdict of the entire world.

"It is all past and I do not want to pass as a martyr," he said today. "I am trying to earn a peaceful living. I wish all governments were like that, where everybody enjoys blessings and liberty."

THE LEGION AUXILIARY HERVE D. PARTHENAIS

Lowell Women Delegates to Convention, of American Legion Auxiliary

Mrs. Helen A. Bishop of Leicester was re-elected state president of the American Legion auxiliary, Massachusetts department, at the close of the third annual convention of the organization in the Augustus Peabody Gardner auditorium of the State House, last Saturday afternoon. The three vice-presidents elected were Mrs. Elizabeth P. O'Brien of Hyde Park, Mrs. G. Walter Williams of New Bedford, and Miss Anna M. Marlon of Waltham. The first two were re-elected.

The Women's auxiliary of American Legion Post 57 of Lowell was represented at the convention by delegates Mrs. Margaret Hewitt, president; Mrs. Bessie McDermott, secretary; Mrs. Katharine Prayley and Miss Loretta Messier, Miss Nellie E. Pike, local press correspondent of the auxiliary. Accompanied the delegates from Lowell.

The local delegates have a very interesting report of the convention proceedings, which lasted two days, Friday and Saturday, to present at the next meeting of the local auxiliary which will be held on Tuesday evening, Sept. 2, in Memorial hall at 8 o'clock. Every member is urged to be present.

Other officers chosen at the Boston convention included Mrs. Laura E. Bailey of Boston, Miss Marie A. Gagnon of Springfield and Mrs. Charles H. Peterson of Amherst, re-elected without opposition to the offices of secretary, treasurer and chaplain respectively.

Mrs. Hattie Baker, Manchester, contested the re-election of Mrs. Archer W. Ives, Brookline, as historian, but lost in the voting.

The delegates-at-large elected to go to the national convention at New Orleans next month are Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Miss Gagnon, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. O'Brien, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Vera C. Seven. Seven alternates will be appointed by Mrs. Bishop.

General Edwards, who was a guest of the auxiliary members, declared they "comprised the backbone of the Legion." He discussed the advisability of military training for the youth of the country, and the necessity of a more efficient army, after presenting 60 honor diplomas to Massachusetts units for increased membership, said:

"Anyone eligible and not joining is quite as much a slacker as the man who did not go to fight when he was called. Our object is to give the men in the hospital courage, and to make disabled men realize that the more they are disgraced, the more we honor them."

"She stressed the desirability of the auxiliary making a practice of adopting American war orphans, as in past years American women had adopted French and Belgian war orphans."

Past State Commander James T. Duane of the Legion was present and spoke. He predicted a membership of 40,000 for the auxiliary in the next five years.

The auxiliary convention will be held next year in Springfield.

WERE BURNED TO DEATH WILSON IS BACK AGAIN

Horses Burned in Fire That Destroyed Building in Cambridge Street

Two valuable horses were burned to death and an automobile truck was destroyed in a fire which destroyed the barrel shop of Cohen & Ezekiel, 137 Cambridge street, Saturday night. It is figured that the damage will be between $8000 and $10,000.

The fire started in the shop of Cohen & Ezekiel, 137 Cambridge street, Saturday night. It is figured that the damage will be between $8000 and $10,000. The fire started in the shop of Cohen & Ezekiel, 137 Cambridge street, Saturday night. It is figured that the damage will be between $8000 and $10,000.

After the fire had been extinguished it was found that the one-story building of the company had been burned to death, while the other was so badly burned that Sgt. Frawley ended its misery with a bullet from his revolver. One of the horses, it is said, was bought only three months ago and was valued at $300.

The origin of the fire is not known as the fire had been working in the shop since last Friday because of Saturday being a Jewish holiday. The watchman stated that he went into the building at 10 o'clock to feed the horses and at that time he found everything all right. Sam Cohen, one of the members of the firm said that at that time of year more barrels are kept in storage than at any other time and some of them were valued as high as $8 each. He said in all probability the company will rebuild.

Sutton Makes Comeback at City Hall—His Name is on Payroll

Sutton P. Wilson is back again—back in the municipal harness. How long he will be in the harness is difficult to say, but for the time being, at least, he's back with the boys.

This time, however, he appears in the purchasing agent's department and for two days or more last week worked as a weigher of coal in the yard of the Boston & Maine Co. This work always has been done by Thomas J. Murphy. Mr. Wilson has no connection with the B. & M. Wilson Coal Co. It is simply a coincidental linking of names. The company of that name is selling coal to the city and Sutton P. is weighing it.

His duty wage amounts to $5 and his name appears on the payroll of the purchasing agent's department for last week. As he did not begin work until Thursday, he does not get a full week, but there may be better times ahead.

Mr. Wilson has figured not a little in municipal affairs this year and, unfortunately his connection with various departments has not always been crowned with continuity. The civil service has been an awful bother to him and has seemed possessed to wait him out of any office after another.

He started out as division superintendent of ashes, but the civil service decided there should be an examination for the place and Mr. Wilson did not compete and automatically faded out of the picture. Next he bobbed up as a storekeeper at the department yard in Broadway, but again the iron heel of the C.S. left its heartless imprint. His pay was held up and released finally, only upon the understanding that his name would not again appear on any city payroll, without proper authorization.

BIG HAUL EXPECTED BY LIQUOR SQUAD FAILED TO MATERIALIZE

Officers Believed They Had Discovered Booze Transfer Point—Got Tip on Big Load of Booze That Didn't Show Up—Interesting Liquor Case in District Court Today

Members of the liquor squad today testified in district court before Judge Thomas J. Enright that earlier in the month they had discovered what they believed to be a transfer point for liquor runners. Sgt. Michael Wynn said that the place in question had been under surveillance for some time and that he was sure a Moody street garage was the meeting place of illicit rum-runners who transferred contraband from one auto to another. Another member of the squad said that liquor-squad members had been tipped that a large load of "booze" was

New Arrivals are "Cordially Greeted" and "Tormented" by Upper Classmen

About 40 members of the 1922 class of the Lowell-Textile school arrived in this city this morning. They came, they saw, but they did not conquer for upper classmen, mindful of the "cordial" reception accorded them in previous years, decided not to be outgoing in generosity and consequently greeted the unsuspecting new arrivals with a veritable baptism of welcome. Early in the morning, Principal Charles H. Eames addressed the freshmen in Southwick hall, outlining the plan of campaign for the ensuing year and impressing on them the necessity of brotherly love and true and loyal college spirit. At 11 o'clock sophomores, juniors and seniors, having anxiously and impatiently awaited the conclusion of the principal's speech, corralled the freshmen in the campus yard and proceeded to exemplify, by the time Eames means by "spirit," and if the tyro's didn't get the point by the time the hazers arrived in Merrimack square, then George Washington never crossed the Delaware.

GREEK CABINET GAINS STRENGTH

Belief Expressed in Athens That it May Live Out Present National Crisis

New Ministers Added With the View to Bring it Popular Support

ATHENS, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—Spurred to greater effort by popular clamor for its resignation, the cabinet of Premier Triantafyllakos is developing unexpected cohesion in strength and may even live out the present national crisis.

It has added new members to the ministry, chosen with the view to bringing it popular support, has appointed to its cabinet the governor-general of Thrace and has designated three popular generals to proceed to Thrace and push the work of reorganizing the army there.

Meanwhile a note from the allied powers disclosing their communication to Mustapha Kemal Pasha, according to his conditions for peace has reached the foreign office. The powers in their communication merely informed the Greek government of their action.

Papers Embracing 3500 Signatures, Placed in Hands of Election Commission at 9 O'Clock—Petition Specifies Annual Elections—If Commission Certifies 3000 Names Question Will Go to Voters on State Election Day, Nov. 7

Desmond, who has fathered the movement and who is mainly responsible for securing the names that appear hereon.

DISGRACE TO CIVILIZATION

Sec. Davis so Terms Strife and Bloodshed in Nation's Industrial Life

Appeals to Labor Leaders to Help Restore Industrial Relations to Orderly Bases

CHATEAUGOGA, Tenn., Sept. 25.—Declaring that strife and bloodshed in the nation's industrial life have reached the proportions of a "disgrace to our whole civilization," Secretary of Labor Davis called upon labor leaders in an address near here today, to help restore industrial relations to an orderly basis.

The "ultra-red radical" was blamed by the secretary for much of the violence which attends clashes between labor and capital. For its own preservation, he said, organized labor must put a stop to the activities of these "ultra-reds" and their campaign of "riot, arson and rape."

Mr. Davis' address, delivered at the annual convention of the International Printing Pressmen & Assistants' Union of North America, at the Pressmen's home, included a recital of his own experiences as a union man, which he said had made him an intimate insight into conditions which prompt violence in labor disputes. He knew, he declared, that often "the unscrupulous employer, facing trouble with his working men, has resorted to the company guard, the so-called private detective, the hired pugilist, whose sole purpose in life is the stirring up of hatred and violence."

"I know that whenever men clash in industrial strife," he continued, "there always is present the agitator, the ultra-red radical whose purpose in life is the destruction of all organized society and whose whole philosophy is violence and bloodshed."

These men are always on the scene when employers and workers clash, ready to incite to lawlessness and riot, arson and murder. They menace the whole system of our labor organization and trade unionism for its own preservation must take steps to eliminate them.

USE OF THE AUDITORIUM

Memorial Auditorium Trustees Give Out Statement Over Their Signatures

The chances are strongly against any proposition whereby the Lowell Memorial Auditorium will be used for "10-cent movies" or free dancing.

The board of trustees will meet tonight to discuss matters pertaining to the use of the building, but in advance have authorized the following statement to the people of the city carrying the approval and bearing the signatures of Charles H. Hobson, chairman; Major Frederick A. Estes, Thos. P. Boulger and Mayor George H. Brown.

TO THE PEOPLE OF LOWELL

"The dedication of our new Auditorium, and the public inspection have passed into history and we now are entering upon the serious business of devoting it to the uses for which it was designed."

"Your trustees are appreciative of the expressions of confidence you have received regarding our application and we shall do our best to merit that confidence, fully realizing that"

"Honor and shame from no condition rise. Act well your part, there all the honor lies."

"In taking up our task we well know constructive criticism and the co-operation of every citizen of Lowell and we want you to realize that it is your building, built in memory of your sons who served in all our wars, and is a means for promoting local pride and the public welfare."

"Our duty as trustees is to see that it is kept in proper condition and devoted to the service of the people. We are not in any sense promoters of dances, moving picture shows or any exhibition, and while we welcome any clean show or dance under proper restrictions given to the public free of charge, the request for use of the building for that purpose must come from some responsible person or organization."

Signed: "CHARLES H. HOBSON, FREDERICK A. ESTES, THOMAS P. BOULGER, GEORGE H. BROWN, Mayor."

In issuing the statement, the trustees, with Mr. Hobson as spokesman, expressed regret that it felt the need of making a public explanation of the policy to be followed in the conduct of the Auditorium's affairs.

From the publication of an article in a local paper on Saturday afternoon and again this morning, that the trustees favored a plan such as outlined by a person who has no connection whatsoever with the management of the building. "This is not an."

"The trustees regret exceedingly," he continued, "that the newspaper in question saw fit to publish the article in question, in which an outsider was quoted as being in favor of motion picture entertainments at the Auditorium

TWO SHOT AND TWO STABBED

Members of Longshoremen's Union and I. W. W. Agents in Battle at Hoboken

Firearms, Bricks and Bale Hooks Used in Riot Near Holland-American Line Pier

HOBOKEN, N. J., Sept. 25.—Two men were shot and two stabbed today in a clash between members of the International Longshoremen's Association and men said to be agents of the Industrial Workers of the World near the Holland-American line pier. Police reserves called to quell the disturbance arrested five men.

The police were told that the trouble started when I. W. W. workers threatened John Nolan, labor organizer, and member of the Longshoremen's organization. Nolan, it is claimed, fired a shot into the air in an effort to drive back the crowd. Some one pulled his arm down, the police said, and the bullet struck Paul Kunert and George Knipping.

The shooting precipitated a small riot in which firearms, bricks and bale hooks were used. Edward McDonald, a labor organizer, affiliated with the Longshoremen's Association, and Bernard Foley of Hoboken were hit.

Mr. Hobson stressed the fact that the board of trustees is not in the business of promoting dances, motion picture shows, or any exhibition, although any clean show or dance, under proper restrictions and free of charge, is welcomed, provided that the request comes from a responsible person or organization.

MANY STRIKERS REPORT FOR WORK AT THE HAMILTON MILLS

Former Employees Were Instructed Last Saturday to Report for Work This Morning—Strike Leaders Unable to State How Many Old Hands Were Reinstated

The first step in the settlement of the strike at the Hamilton Mfg. Co. was taken this morning when a large number of strikers reported for work. It is understood that several of the former employees of the plant were sent for last Saturday and instructed to report for work this morning, but at noon today strike leaders were unable to state just how many were reinstated to their former positions. Thomas J. Reagan, organizer for the United Textile Workers of America, stated today that in his opinion the local strikes will not be entirely settled until a settlement is reached in the New Hampshire strikes. Mr. Reagan was in Nashua, N. H., yesterday and he was informed that a great number of operatives of that city as well as of Manchester, N. H., are now employed at the International Cotton mills, the Hamilton Mfg. Co., and the Massachusetts mills of this city, and these people are anxious to get back to their home cities, but they will not leave their jobs in Lowell until the strikes in the mills where they were employed are settled. Mr. Reagan is confident that the New Hampshire strikes will be settled within a very short time, and then, he says, there will be plenty of work in Lowell for the Lowell strikers.

TURKS NOT TO ACCEPT INVITATION TO PEACE CONFERENCE

Hamid Bey Says Angora Government Cannot Accept Allied Terms—Means Demobilization of Sea of Marmora and Part of Thrace—London Papers Score Paris Near Eastern Settlement

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 24.—(By the Associated Press) Hamid Bey, representative of the Angora government in Constantinople, declared today the Allied invitation to the peace conference could not be accepted by the Turkish Nationalists on the terms laid down.

"We cannot accept the Allied terms because they propose to demilitarize the Sea of Marmora and part of Thrace, which would prevent us from bringing our troops from Asia to Europe," said Hamid in a statement to the correspondent. "Neither can we accept literally the condition that our army shall not advance while the peace conference is progressing."

"This would so circumscribe our movements that the enemy would have ample opportunity to prepare for a fresh attack and would give the allies a chance to complete their land and naval reinforcements in the event the conference failed."

"Regarding the straits, we already have admitted freedom for the passage of all vessels through the Dardanelles, but we are not prepared to define in what authority, or body, the control

BUYS LIQUOR FOR PARENTS

Little Girl Testifies She Had No Trouble Getting Moonshine

Motor Law and Liquor Law Violators Draw Fines in Court

That a nine-year-old girl has been buying moonshine in the vicinity of Lakeview avenue for her parents and that the latter bear her unmercifully, until neighbors interfered and called in the police, was the story told to Judge Enright in district court this morning by the little girl and neighbors when Peter and Agnes Gawlik, faced charges of drunkenness.

"It is a terrible state of affairs, when a girl of this age can buy moonshine," said Judge Enright. "She should be taken over to that locality by officers and allowed to point out the people from whom she made the purchases," he added. After hearing the evidence the court took the case under advisement until Friday and ordered each of the defendants held in bonds of $300.

Officers Called

Officers testified that on more than one occasion they had been called to the house by neighbors. One woman testified that she had implored the mother to stop beating the child. When the mother refused the father was appealed to and the woman said that he also beat the little girl. The woman then said that she called in the police on the case. She also said that she

Beautiful Pageant Closes 35th Anniversary Celebration of Local Church

CENTRALVILLE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

"The City Beautiful," a pageant of historical type, was the culminating feature of the 35th anniversary celebration in the Centralville M. E. church last evening. It was the work of Miss Augustina Smith and given under the direction of Miss Genevieve Townsend of Boston University. There were more than 60 voices in the grand chorus.

Considering the limitations due to the comparatively small platform, it was a remarkable performance. The central idea of the pageant is the redeemed city. The first two scenes are biblical, one being a realistic interpretation of Hebrew dramatic literature depicting the triumphant entry of David into Jerusalem; the second depicts Christ's entry on Palm Sunday. The third scene depicts the triumph of the modern city. This was very dramatic. The final scene depicted the ideal, the "New Jerusalem." The work of those who completed the admirable cast of characters in this notable production full of vivid interest, calls for no ordinary praise. The work of the principals was excellent in every way, showing careful training and a desire to adhere strictly to historical fact in all details of presentation, including costumes. The lighting effects for the pageant were particularly good. The great interest aroused in the production was responsible for the church auditorium being crowded to the doors last evening.

The chief players in the cast and the characters were as follows: Watchmen, Ivan Burns, Donald Chisholm; Trumpeters, Emma Chisholm, Martine Field.

Greek Cabinet Gains Strength

nal difficulty will begin, and the question as to what will happen is variously answered. The Athenians are passionately divided on the great issue of the king or Venizelos.

The alleged royal project to summon Gen. Metaxas to the premiership, or perhaps even invest him with dictatorial powers if the situation justifies such a step, is a burning theme of discussion. Metaxas himself frankly discussed it today with The Associated Press.

"You must see the king and the crown prince, too," he said, "for the American people should know more about them. The Greek people admire and respect their king, who never signed an abdication and whom they summoned to return at the last election. That was the only issue—the king or Venizelos, and they chose the king."

"The cabinet is stronger today than yesterday. I would say today that its fall is possible, but not probable. If it goes I believe its majesty will summon me. If so I will present myself before parliament and if the national assembly rejects me, then the king by a coup d'etat, would continue on, but I would arrange for a new election as soon as possible."

"If the people at that election vote for Venizelos, then Venizelos will be free to return as premier. I doubt, however, that he would want to. He prefers diplomacy abroad, that is his specialty."

"Meanwhile, I would collaborate effectively with the Venizelist party in the interest of national unity."

Gen. Metaxas claims that the present national assembly does not represent the will of the people on general party and political questions and that therefore the people must be permitted to speak directly in the present national election.

He was unaware what the Venizelists would do. "You must ask their leader," he said. "But make no mistake, the king or the existing royal dynasty will remain and rule. That, at least, I think is the will of the people."

Plan B Charter

additional signatures for general measure. Under the law, however, the election commission must certify to the names as correct, before the secretary of state is notified of the petition.

One of Four Standard Forms

As is generally known, Plan B is one of four standard charter forms adopted by the state legislature for cities within its jurisdiction and may be adopted by the voters of any city without any additional consent upon the part of the legislature.

In many respects it is not unlike the charter under which the city of Lowell now is being governed and which has been in operation only nine months. The present instrument is not one of the standard forms, however, but was placed on the ballot last fall by special legislative consent and only after a hard fight in committee and in the general court. It was the work of a special committee which spent months in its preparation.

Its Provisions in Brief

Plan B does away with the budget and audit commission and the board of public service, but retains the mayor and council form of government. In brief, its provisions are as follows:

Mayor and city council of 15 members (one elected from each ward and six at large); school committee of six members elected at-large; with the mayor as chairman; council shall set salary of mayor by ordinance, not to exceed $5000 per year; council to set salaries of councilors by ordinance, not to exceed $300 per year; all heads of departments and municipal boards (except school committee) as their present terms expire, shall be appointed by the mayor, subject to confirmation by the city council, except city solicitor, who shall be named by the mayor, without confirmation; all orders, ordinances, resolutions or votes, relative to the affairs of the city, passed by the council, shall go to the mayor for his consideration. If he approves, he signs, if not he sends back to the council in form of veto; council may override veto by two-thirds vote; at first election two members of school committee shall be elected for one-year terms, two for two-year terms and two for three-year terms; shall be elected for three-year terms; if charter is adopted it shall be in effect for at least four years.

It will be seen that Plan B is similar to the present charter, although its provision differ somewhat. For instance, under the present form, the city council elects the city clerk, city

The competitive scholarships awarded at Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass., to freshmen taking highest rank in the entrance examinations are announced, with Miss Helen B. Sawyer of Chester street, Lowell, heading the list. Miss Sawyer entered from the Lowell High school and took the new plan examinations. The "southern scholarship" is awarded to Miss Anna P. Vanderslice of Hampton, Va., who prepared at Abbot academy, Andover. The following freshmen are on the honor list for the scholarship won by Miss Sawyer: Katherine Henry of Lincoln, N. H., from Dana Hall school, Wellesley; Margaret H. Kitter of Dorchester, from Girls Latin school, Boston; Harriet J. Eustis of Winchester, from the Winchester high school; Dorothy E. Cowan of South Hadley Falls, prepared at the South Hadley Falls high school; Dorothy C. Wolcott of Springfield, prepared at Springfield Central high school; Ursula P. Hubbard of Ann Arbor, Mich., prepared at Bradford, Mass. academy; Priscilla B. Ford of Bristol, Ct., prepared at Bristol high school; and Katherine C. Jennings of Bridgeport, Ct., prepared at Bridgeport high school.

The board of trustees of Mount Holyoke college have voted to award six competitive scholarships to freshmen beginning in 1923. One will be awarded annually to the student making the highest grade in the examinations. The others are to be granted to the five students making the best examination grades, one from each of the following districts: New England, the middle states, the south, the middle west, the Pacific coast.

treasurer and city auditor, while under Plan B, these officials would be nominated by the mayor and confirmed by the council, which now has full jurisdiction over them.

One section of Plan B that is considered of vital importance is the provision whereby heads of departments and members of boards and commissions now serving under a definite tenure of office, shall remain in office until their respective terms expire.

School Board of Six Members

The present school committee is composed of nine members, all elected at-large, while under Plan B the board is reduced to six and the mayor is a member and chairman as well. This is a radical change.

The mayor's salary at present is $500, which is the maximum under Plan B. The salary of a councillor, however, now is $300 per year, while under the proposed plan, it may be $500.

With the filing of the charter, speculation sprang up as to potential candidates for the office of mayor.

Candidates Being Discussed

George H. Brown, present incumbent, chosen last winter to serve a term of two years, announced that he will be a candidate if the charter question goes on the ballot and is accepted by a majority of the voters.

"I was elected for a two-year term under the present form of charter," he said, "and will go before the people for re-election."

It is believed that Jeremiah J. O'Sullivan, a candidate last year, will run for the office. Perry D. Thompson, mayor for four years, has not expressed himself one way or another, while other men, who have been mentioned as possibilities, have made no confirming statement.

Meet to Arrange Terms of Armistice

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press)—The allied high commissioners plan to meet today for the purpose of bringing together representatives of Greece and the Turkish nationalists for the conference at Mudania, at which the terms of an armistice are expected to be settled. Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, commander of the American naval detachment in Turkish waters, will attend in the capacity of observer for the United States. The conference will examine the present military and naval positions of the belligerents with a view to immediate cessation of hostilities.

Decrease in Production of Firearms

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The production of firearms at private plants in the United States showed a decrease of more than 58 per cent in the year 1921 as compared with 1919, according to a report today by the census bureau. The total value of the output of the 25 establishments operating in 1919 was $30,181,370 against a value of $12,510,302 for the 18 plants operating last year.

THE DAY OF ATONEMENT

Jewish People Will Observe

Yom Kippur—Services in Synagogues

Special services will be held in the local synagogues on the day of atonement, or Yom Kippur as it is named in Hebrew, which falls due this year Monday, Oct. 2, and is observed by the Jewish people in all parts of the world with unvarying solemnity from sunset Sunday evening, Oct. 1, until sundown of Oct. 2. No other holiday of the synagogue is invested with such importance as this day of atonement. It is the most distinctly Jewish holiday of the year, one that is most pervasive and states in fullest measure the ultimate goal and purpose of Israel's striving. The Messianic fulfillment of the Jews as well as humanity's destiny is fore-ordained in the Yituv of this service.

The ceremonial observance of the Day of Atonement requires the worshiper to withdraw from all worldly cares, and forgetful of the workaday affairs which have occupied him during the year, devote himself to God in thoughts of prayer and repentance. The devout tarry in the synagogue from morning till evening, abstaining from food and drink, so that by affliction their souls may be the better purged of sin. Under the severe discipline of this interpretation and fasting, the worshiper exercises a larger degree of self control in his relations with humanity and thus becomes reconciled to man and God.

Yom Kippur has a long ancestry, and like many of the holidays and ceremonies of the synagogue has undergone changes during the centuries. Its broken historical existence in which the Jews have journeyed among men. In the Moslem code, for example, on this day the high priest in the temple performed the important function of expiation for the sanctuary, the priesthood and the people.

In contrast to this priestly monopoly of service with its external forms of expiation, the rabbis of the synagogue clothed this holiday with the mantle of the spiritual and the inner life. The prophets of Israel and invoked it with the doctrines of God's mercy and paternal love.

One phase of the ritual in the modern synagogue is devoted to the remembrance of dear ones called to their eternal reward. The memorial services usually held in the afternoon of the Day of Atonement are solemn and impressive and are intended to remember not only those of the Jewish community who have passed away but to commemorate all good and noble men and women who have served the cause of humanity and increased peace in the world.

INJURED IN RUNAWAY

A horse driven by Miss Yvonne Delanger of Detroit ran away in Alken avenue yesterday afternoon and as a result the driver and her companion, Mrs. Rose Lafontaine of 22 Cabot street, this city, were injured. The animal ran away at a point in the corner of West Sixth street and both women were thrown from the carriage. The horse was brought to a stop at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Alken avenue. The ambulance removed the two women to the Lowell Corporation hospital, where it was found that their injuries were not serious.

CUP OF TEA CALLS FORTH PLEASANT MEMORIES

What pleasant memories a cup of tea calls forth. As we linger with a friend over "the cup that cheers," or find refreshment in it when we weary, how little we realize the numerous and careful processes the tea plant goes through, before it is drunk as a beverage.

Tea thought is forcibly brought to mind by a visit to the big plant of the Salada Tea company in Boston. But before you enter this building, let us go in imagination across the sea where on the beautiful island of Ceylon, the tea garden, fragrant with white blossoms rises one above another in full perfection. The tea gardens are planted on hillsides. The higher the elevation, the better the tea. After the seed has been planted, it takes from two to three years before the plant is ready for picking. When once matured it is picked every week for a year. At the end of that time the yield is poor and the plants are subjected to a severe pruning. Owing to the miteless climate however, and a few weeks' rest, the plants again send forth shoots, and in a short time are more luxuriant than ever. They are then picked as before for another year. It takes from four to five years to establish a tea garden. The difference in time depends upon the altitude at which the garden is planted. In Ceylon only owing to the peculiarities of climate it is practical to pick tea the year round. After the tea is picked it is carried to the factory and weighed. Black and green tea grow on the same bush. The difference is solely in the manner in which it is cured. If green tea is desired, the tea is taken directly from the picker's basket and steamed in a revolving machine then rolled, dried and sorted. If black tea is desired, it is carried to the withering houses and spread in thin layers on bamboo racks. When withered it is put through a rolling machine, the object of which is to crush the leaf and liberate the juices.

The process of fermentation comes next. This is done by placing thin strips of cotton cloth soaked in cold water on the tea which has been spread out in beds. After fermentation the tea receives a second rolling, then it is fired or dried in automatic machines, after which it is ready for the sorting room. After the tea is picked over, it is sifted, then fired again, and finally subjected to the simple but necessary process of bulking. This is done by putting together all tea of the same grade that has been accumulating in the bins. This means every pound of tea is identical in quality. The tea is then packed in metal lined chests of about one hundred pounds capacity and is ready for shipment.

We are told a one pound packet of tea yields from two hundred and fifty to three hundred cups of tea. How to properly brew Salada so as to ensure a perfect cup of tea is wondrously simple. You must first of all scald out a creckery tea pot and while it is warm put in a teaspoon of tea, for every two cups, pour on freshly boiling water (but be sure it is "bubbling" boiling) and allow it to steep from five to eight minutes. Then pour it off the leaves into another warmed tea pot and serve. If you poured off the leaves in this way, it will keep fragrant and delicious to the last cup.

TO ASK REVIEW OF INJUNCTION ORDER

CHICAGO, Sept. 25.—Donald R. Hirschberg counsel for the railway shop crafts, indicated today that the step in the shopmen's fight against the Daugherty injunction would be a petition to the United States circuit court of appeals for a review of Judge Wilkeson's order.

Hearings on the petition of 15,000 signal men for an increase in wages were opened by the railroad labor board today. The signalmen's wages were cut July 1, in a decision handed down by the board at the time it slashed the pay of the shopmen, but the signalmen did not join the July 1 walkout. The cut ranged from five to seven cents an hour. Their strike vote was held in abeyance when they were granted the rehearing set for today.

Forty-two railroads and their subsidiaries are represented at the hearing. There are 14,000,000 telephones in the United States.

Improvement in Employment Conditions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Employment conditions improved materially in 30 out of 42 important industries of the country during the month of August, as compared with July, the department of labor announced today. The largest increases in employment appeared in the "stamped ware and fertilizer industries and printing newspapers," the report said. Decreased employment occurred in those industries manufacturing tobacco products and men's clothing, and in car building and repair shops. Thirty-three of the 43 industries canvassed by government investigators indicated increases in the total amount of their payrolls for the month while nine industries registered decreases.

ONLY AMERICA CAN HEAL ILLS

Will Not Aid European Countries Until Malady of Socialism is Overcome

Dr. Von Geimenes, German Magnate, Sounds Warning—Germany Not Prosperous

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press.) The healing of Europe's ills is possible only through the aid of America, but she will not help so long as she is convinced that Germany, as well as Russia and Austria, "is infected with the intellectual malady of socialism," says a statement by Dr. Carl Friedrich von Siemens, an industrial magnate, a member of the Reichstag and a member of the imperial economy council.

"If we ourselves have not the power to overcome this sickness," he warns the Germans, "then America will consider it essential that the center of epidemic be isolated and the illness permitted to abate of itself, as a lesson of warning for other peoples."

He says it appears abroad and in a large part at home, that Germany is fully prosperous and that her economic condition is improving since there is no unemployment in Germany and the demand is greater than the production; yet the contrary is actually the case. Germany is selling and hoarding that which she stored in former years and is producing the foundation of her later resurrection, he declares.

One cause of "our blind economic self-weakening," he asserts, lies in the fact that the Germans continually use the mark not only as a means of exchange and compensation, but as an standard of value, although its worth has sunk to three-tenths of a penny.

"We can only arrive at the convalescence of our economies and we no longer use the rubber band but rather the firm yard rule as the measure of value," says the statement. "Only then can we gain the necessary credit abroad."

Dr. Von Siemens scathingly criticized socialism, declaring that "the sternest form must be presented against socialist leveling and oppression through state regulation of economies. To make further concessions to the masses, spells democracy compromised and ruined."

PUBLIC SPIRITED ACT APPRECIATED

A very kind and public-spirited act in connection with the dedicatory exercises of the Memorial Auditorium last Thursday evening, that has been somewhat lost sight of in the mass of detail necessary to its success, was performed by Benjamin Pickett, manager of the B. F. Keith theatre.

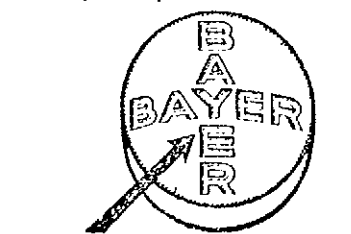

At the last moment and at very short notice, it was found necessary to obtain the services of a first class cornetist. None could be secured and finally Mr. Pickett was appealed to for aid. He conferred with his orchestra leader, William Gilmore, with the result that they willingly consented to provide their own orchestra and allow Mr. McDaniels, conductor, to join the orchestra that was to play at the exercises for the Lowell Choral society.

Mr. McDaniels, who is one of the best cornetists in the country, learned the score rapidly and beautifully played the difficult trumpet parts in both "The Messiah" and "The Redemption" choruses. Not only did Mr. B. F. Keith, the leader, speak in the highest terms of the work of Mr. McDaniels, but it was an act of public spirited co-operation on the part of Mr. Pickett and Mr. Gilmore that the Auditorium commission never will forget.

Queen Victoria of Spain was at one time an enthusiastic amateur actress, and was said to possess dramatic talent of a high order.

NEW POLITICAL LINEUP COMING

Garrison Predicts Scrapping of Republican and Democratic Parties

New Lineup of Conservatives and Radicals for Next Presidential Election

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 25.—That the two great political parties in the United States are having difficulty to find an issue upon which they can differ, and that the natural outcome of the situation is likely to result in the scrapping of the republican and democratic parties in favor of a new political lineup of conservatives and radicals, is the opinion of Bradley M. Garrison, former secretary of war, who is here to attend a hearing in the United States district court.

"Despite the fact that Winfield Scott Hancock was defeated for the presidency because he said 'the deficit in a local issue,'" Mr. Garrison said, "I am inclined to believe that he was right. What is there then for partisans to quarrel about?"

"There is, however, a very decided difference of opinion among American people regarding our constitution. While I class myself as a conservative, I have no quarrel with that large and growing body of Americans who feel that this country has outgrown its constitution and that the time has come when a new form of government is required. They have a legitimate right to work for the carrying out of their opinions, provided lawful measures are used. A new political alignment is imminent in America—the conservatives of both parties against the radicals."

Mr. Garrison expressed the opinion that the new parties are not likely to make their appearance before the next presidential election.

EX-KAISER'S FIANCEE NURSE TO AIRMEN

BAABOR, Illinois, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press.) Princess Illeana of Rumania, former Emperor William's fiancée, became a nurse to three airplane pilots and an American correspondent, whose airplane turned upside down while circling over her estate yesterday. Two of the men were seriously hurt.

The four aviators were carried into the hunting lodge on the estate. The princess herself, who was returning from a visit, hastened with her children to attend to their needs.

The four visitors were highly enthusiastic in their comment on the beautiful appearance of the princess. The trip was taken to secure an aerial photograph of her estate.

ASKS $9,125,000 TO ENFORCE DRY LAWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes will seek an appropriation of $9,125,000 for the enforcement of the federal dry laws during the next fiscal year. It is said at the treasury department.

Estimates prepared for the budget bureau carry this amount, which is approximately the same sum authorized by congress for this purpose during the current fiscal year.

The estimates, officials say, are being kept to the minimum in line with the administration's policy of keeping expenses within the expectation of revenue receipts to avoid a deficit.

WANTS SIGN PLACED ON POSTOFFICE

How can a tourist or a stranger in Lowell tell the postoffice from any other public building?

Postmaster Xavier A. Delisle intends to send a request to the postal authorities in Washington that a sign be placed on the building so that people may be able to locate it.

The postmaster feels that an explanatory sign should be placed on the exterior of the building, as the postoffice is one of the first places the visitor heads for in order to inquire as to suitable hotels, good roads leading from the city, and other questions pertaining to their stay in the city. The postoffice is situated on a busy corner at the junction of two important traffic arteries and a great number of tourists pass there in their machines. Many of these like to send postcards and letters to their friends from the various cities on their itinerary and are puzzled as to where there is no way of telling the postoffice.

Postmaster Delisle intends to remedy this condition and have a suitable sign placed on the building that will acquaint strangers with what public department is housed within its walls. He expects to receive a satisfactory reply to his recommendation which will result in the placing of a marker on the postoffice building.

America—Radio Hub of World

(By N.E.A. Service) WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25.—America, the radio hub of the world.

Increased activity in the construction of radio stations throughout the world, for the reception of messages from the United States, promises to add this distinction to the many now held by this country.

This conclusion is made from an account of the world-wide operations undertaken by American radio firms, presented by P. E. Nagle, communications expert of the United States department of commerce in "Commerce Reports."

"Every American communication company," writes Nagle, "is now actively engaged in the construction of additional facilities and in plans for new routes and methods for the improvement of operation conditions."

Before this expansion can be undertaken, however, corresponding stations must be erected abroad. This, says Nagle, is dependent on the development of the radio industry in each foreign country concerned. The fact that radio across the sea is either a government or private monopoly is considered a hindrance to American expansion there.

But most of the Latin-American countries permit the erection of foreign owned radio stations in their territories. Direct communication between Europe and both America and therefore, will be possible with the

CROP YIELDS AND PRICES DISAPPOINTING

WAKEFIELD, Sept. 25.—Crop yields and prices received this season have been somewhat disappointing to farmers of New England, according to a bulletin issued today by the local branch of the United States department of agriculture.

"The heavy, damaging rains in June hurt Maine potatoes, Connecticut valley onions and tobacco," the bulletin adds. "Lack of rain later restricted Aroostook county potatoes further, while continued wet weather did further damage to onions and tobacco as well as to hay and grain. However, grains, especially oats in Aroostook and some other places and hay generally, gave excellent yields."

"Fruit crops in Massachusetts are much better than last year; somewhat better in the other states except Maine. The general abundance of United States crops has caused prices to trend downward, but the upward swing of general business should help to offset this drift to some extent through greater buying power in consuming centers."

RECORD ENROLLMENT AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 25.—Harvard university reopened today for its 287th year with an enrollment both in college and in the graduate schools probably the largest in its history. All freshmen class figures were expected to be broken when registration was completed. The number to attend the university this year was estimated at about 6000.

New departments opening for the first time included the Harvard School of Public Health, and the Theological School, formed by agreement last June between the Harvard authorities and the trustees of Andover Theological Seminary. In the former Dr. Roger J. Lee will serve as acting dean until the return next spring of Dr. David L. Edsall, who is abroad. Rev. William L. Sperry is the dean of the divinity school.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET TOMORROW

Plans Completed for Opening of the State Convention in Springfield

Sen. David I. Walsh to Be Permanent Chairman — Draw up Platform Tonight

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 25.—The platform on which William A. Gaston, as democratic nominee for United States senator, and John P. Fitzgerald, as democratic nominee for governor, together with other party candidates will seek in the forthcoming state election to supplant the republican incumbents will be drawn up in tentative form here tonight. Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, who was selected as chairman of the committee on resolutions, was one of the first of the advance guard to the democratic state convention of tomorrow to arrive here.

The convention will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Municipal Auditorium. It will have as its permanent presiding officer, United States Senator David Walsh and as temporary presiding officer, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston. Aside from ratification of the candidates chosen in the recent primaries, and adoption of the platform for their campaign, the only business will be the selection of members of the state committee.

Leaders in the city today said there was every indication of harmony, and that in all probability no disturbing factor would be introduced.

notified Agent Richardson of the Humane society, but that the police arrived in the meantime. The neighbor added that the girl had been taken by neighbors and given shelter and food for the past few days.

The little girl, sad-eyed and shy, was called the street and Judge Partridge kindly invited her up on the bench. With kind words he drew from the child a most heart-rending story. The child said that she had been beaten and that she was sent out and had purchased moonshine for her parents. She said, in reply to a question as to where she obtained the illicit liquor, that she had bought it in many different places and from many different people.

The parents were then brought on to testify and declared that neither of them had been intoxicated and that they had never sent their daughter after moonshine. The man testified that he had been given a half-pint of "shine" by another party.

The court then asked if it wasn't so that the couple had been receiving food from the city and going out and selling it. They both denied this and the judge said that the only thing she ever sent the little girl after was bread.

Was Fined $50
Andrew Blanchard was fined $50 for operating an auto while under the influence of liquor. The case was a continued one. Blanchard said that he had been to a party and had taken a little and was sorry that he bumped into another machine. He said that he had made restitution for all damage whereupon prosecuting officials recommended that the minimum fine of $20 be imposed as the men had made good for all damage.

"The court, however, was of a different frame of mind. He said, 'If a man gets drunk and operates an auto while under the influence of liquor he should be punished severely and not let off as lightly is possible. If he has made restitution, it is nothing more than he would have to do in a civil court. If this case went to the superior court, he would be convicted as there's no damage done. I don't intend to allow these violators to get off with the lightest possible sentence. Order him to pay a fine of $50, Mr. Clerk.'"

The drunkenness case was filed and the defendant was placed on probation until Saturday, with the understanding that he would make good the fine.

Olivia Bourgeois of Dancut pleaded guilty to drunkenness. He was held in $200 bonds until Oct. 4. The court said that any man who drove his family out of the house, as the defendant was charged with doing, ought to go to jail.

Thomas Sofas pleaded guilty to illegal keeping and paid a fine of $100. Joseph H. Hebert pleaded guilty to an illegal sale and paid a like amount.

Fred Moril was charged with operating an auto so as to endanger the lives of the public, and operating without a registration in his possession. The case was continued until Saturday. Moril was arrested on Merrimack street near Alken last night by Motorcycle Officer Daniel Lynch. The officer said this morning that he was which Foreign Secretary Curzon was expected to present a detailed report of his mission in Paris.

The cabinet meeting was attended by all of the ministers together with Admiral Earl Batty, the Earl of Cavan and the other military and naval personages who have been in close touch with the cabinet recently.

While there was still no reply from Mustafa Kemal, the situation was regarded in government circles as easier. The incident of the invasion of the neutral zone at Channik, when Turkish cavalry entered the zone Saturday night, retired Sunday after a meeting between the commanders of the Turkish and British forces, was looked upon as indicating there need be no fear of the repetition of such incidents.

Only Way to Avoid War
LONDON, Sept. 25. (By the Associated Press.)—Enthusiasm for the Paris peace conference is making its most important aspect of the settlement and the question of the concessions to the Turks is not emphasized. Blatantly, however, these concessions are declared to be excessive, and the governmental daily Chronicle says:

"Never has a victorious power shown more generosity for the sake of peace." Most of the commentators sharply score the government and especially Prime Minister Lloyd George for mishandling the whole situation, with the result that Great Britain has "suffered a severe diplomatic setback after talking very big indeed."

Italian Press Approves Terms

London Avails Reply
LONDON, Sept. 25. (By the Associated Press.)—The British government was today awaiting the reply of the Turkish national government to the allied peace proposals and general satisfaction was expressed in official circles at the outcome of the Paris conference, which was hailed as a great success.

Whether the allied note has yet reached Mustafa Kemal Pasha is unknown. Prime Minister Lloyd George returned this morning from Chequers Court, his official country residence, and presided over a cabinet meeting at certain parts of his testimony, together with other complications that came up the court continued the case until Wednesday during which time he said that he would think over the matter.

A Man Named "Joe"
According to the testimony of Lipps, he works in a repair shop in one portion of a building and a partition separates his shop from a garage. He said that a man named "Joe," whose last name he did not know, frequently came to the premises selling liquor. In answer to a query, he said that he believed "Joe" came from Boston. On the day in which the raid was made Lipps testified that "Joe" drove up to the garage and asked him if he wanted any liquor. Lipps inquired as to the kind and price, finally buying a case for $15. He said that "Joe" had several other cases stored in the back of a large touring car. The raiding officers found the case under a work bench in Lipps' repair shop.

While interrogated as to how the broken boxes came into his possession and what they were used for, Lipps replied that he was given the boxes for firewood and understood that they contained alcohol which was transferred from one machine to another after being taken from the boxes.

The court then threw a bomb-shell into the affair by saying that a certain woman had come to him and asked to have the place in question investigated, as she alleged that her husband was engaged in the illicit rum-running business.

Lipps said that he didn't know anything about that. He contended that what went on inside of the garage was none of his affair, and that the garage was conducted by another person.

The broken up boxes were produced, together with a sample of the whiskey and some certain marks and dates. One of the dates on the boxes was "Sept. 2," the day on which the raid was made. When asked by the court to explain the marking, Lipps replied that he knew nothing about the marks and that they might have been made on the boxes by the police officers as sort of a memo for the date of the raid.

According to one member of the raiding party the squad was all set for a big haul on the day the raid was made as it was pretty sure that a load was coming in to the transfer point. After the officers had swooped down and searched the place three or four other places in the vicinity were searched as it was thought that the runners had been tipped off in advance and cached the load in some other place. The alleged big haul was not found.

BOOSTING THE PARTY

At the republican convention on Saturday, the leaders assembled to adopt a platform and as usual at the opening of a campaign to proclaim to the world that the party achievements are unparalleled, that prosperity abounds and that it is the result of the policies of the republican party. Vice President Coolidge was drafted to take a leading part in the glorification of the administration and considering the basis he had to work upon, he did a fine job.

In dealing with the "achievements" of the present do-nothing administration, the vice president could not be very specific and, therefore, astute politician that he is, he confined himself mainly to the enactment of the tariff law and that alone was enough to defend. He lauded the administration for the maintenance of peace. The war ceased in Nov. 11, 1918 and it would appear that the republicans claim credit for the fact that it did not start up again.

It was regarded as a wonderful achievement that after nearly three years in control of congress a tariff bill was passed "over almost insurmountable obstacles." In a congress with a vast republican majority why should there be such "insurmountable obstacles" if the bill were not a mass of defects? It was the unprecedented surrender of the tariff framers to the predatory interests that caused such vigorous opposition; but the republicans managed to whip the recalcitrants into line so as to secure a majority sufficient to put the bill across.

Senator Lodge says it has extended the free list over that of any tariff bill hitherto passed; but various experts assert that the tariff on wool is monstrous and that it will add from $2.50 to $7.00 to the price of a suit of woolen clothes. The arguments of Senator Walsh and other authorities on this point offer conclusive refutation of Senator Lodge's statement. Col. E. M. House, who is conversant with the various tariff laws that have been in force during the past twenty years, says this law will cost the people of the country much more in a few years than the bonus bill would have cost had it been enacted. Besides, it will prevent our European debtors from paying us what they owe. They cannot pay in gold but could pay in commodities if the tariff were moderate.

Former Speaker Joseph Walker made an effort to check the reactionary policies represented by Senator Lodge; but although he lost, there were about 100 delegates who upheld his main contention.

Senator Lodge repeated the republican claim that the administration had effected a saving of $1,000,000,000 a year since it assumed control of congress. This claim is based upon the fact that the scaling down of expenses from the war period, came as naturally as the rain falls from the clouds and the reduction so effected is claimed by republicans to be due to their economic policies, all of which is a misrepresentation of the facts. The departments were run as usual, but there was a natural diminution of certain war activities and the winding up of needless tail ends of the service. It was simply the gradual process of getting back to normal conditions. This was not a saving as Senator Lodge claims. There could be no justification of maintaining departments on a war basis for years after the war had been ended. It appears from this statement by Senator Lodge that he was hard pressed for material with which to boost his party. He made no mention of the bonus, which his party defended, nor did he mention the Four-Pact treaty under which the government has destroyed a number of war vessels, although the treaty has not been ratified by some of the principal signatory powers.

The convention had to adopt a platform for election purposes and it included certain pledges which may or may not be fulfilled as they, too, were adopted to catch votes. The action of the administration on the bonus shows how little republican campaign pledges are worth.

SCHOOL AND SHOP WORK

Grafton D. Cushing, president of the Massachusetts child labor commission, which has headquarters at No. 6 Beacon street, Boston, has an interesting communication in a current issue of the Fall River Evening News, in which he attempts to survey the "school and work problem." We are glad to see that he makes a special plea to parents to let their children attend the public schools and keep on attending so long as it is possible for them to do so. Says Mr. Cushing:

"It ought not to be a difficult question (for the parents) to decide since all the evidence is in favor of the school. Industry can offer little to offset the irreparable loss of a child's education. Wages have fallen and good positions are few and far between. Openings with a future are not being filled with 14 and 15-year-old boys and girls who have only a meagre education, but by older workers with training. Only 11 per cent of the children under 16 hold positions in skilled trades. Young people with handicapped education drift about from job to job, and are often unemployed for long periods at a time."

We are informed that an investigation recently made by the Massachusetts child labor committee showed that over three-fifths of the children change their positions before they reach 14 and average less than three months to a position.

As Mr. Cushing says, these children who stay in school "reap dividends of increased power which more than make up for the temporary sacrifice." It isn't always a question of dollars and cents. Education is a preparation for life itself, more than it is for earning a living. The Cushing letter concludes:

"The time is not far distant when the state will protect itself by requiring every boy and girl to remain in school until 16. If the people elect legislators with vision this fall, such a law will be passed when the general court convenes in January. In the meantime every influence must be exerted to return to the schools as many as possible of the children when the law now allows to go to work."

THE MATERNITY ACT

Bay State men and women who are campaigning lustily against the absurd "maternity act" are being commended "right and left" in other New England states for their accurate judgment and quick sense of respect for the rights of the states.

The Hartford Courant, in a recent issue, declares strongly that the state of Massachusetts has "done a fine thing in beginning its action against the maternity act, sentimentally worked through congress by a scheming minority. Says the Courant, in winding up an short article of denunciation of the act as it is written and, therefore, must have its being if it has the stamp of approval of the unthinking and careless voters:

"It is time for the states to stand up for the rights. To be sure they are late about it. The centralizing has gone too far already, but this ridiculous bureaucratic machine is too much. If this tendency is allowed to continue when, as Cleveland said, will it end?"

MUSIC AND NOISE

Playing a phonograph in the doorway of a store, to attract trade, annoys a gentleman in the vicinity of Boston. He has a retail shoe store across the street from the talking machine, and goes to court when the canned music sets his nerves on edge. The judge agrees that continued music in a nuisance, and makes the phonograph owner put on the soft pedal.

Injunctions against unnecessary noise will be common a few years from now in cities. Noise, even more than hurry, is what makes city dwellers nervous. The question involved is, when music becomes noise and a veritable nuisance.

Those who reside along the state highways must have a surfeit of noise from the continuous motor traffic and the clatter of the heavy trucks. Even the tires of some trucks make a noise due to traction resembling that of a motorcycle.

FOREIGN GRAIN

In the British grain market, experts estimate that this year's harvest of the six cereal crops of Russia and Ukraine will total about 39,000,000 bushels, against 27,000,000 last year and 65,000,000 in 1920. That should be enough to keep Russia alive, on a restricted diet.

But there is no excess for export, which will please American farmers who know what grain prices, already low, would be if Russia were selling heavily in the international market.

Minnesota drops relatively long enough to study elections and the quantum theory of light which holds that rays of light are streams of flying particles of matter instead of waves or vibrations in ether. Einstein seems to take delight in proving that the impossible is true.

The full bench of the supreme court has just ruled that the industrial accident board is not a court. This is a long mooted question finally settled by the highest authority. The industrial accident board is an administrative tribunal, pure and simple, as most students of the institution have long supposed.

Prosperity appears to be on the calendar for that Boston woman who has been granted permission by a federal judge to sell all the "lucky stones" she cares to, if anyone is foolish enough to want to buy them.

Increased demand for nearly all lumber products is now the rule, but the car shortage is menacing. The lumbermen sometimes have as many troubles as the coal dealers, it seems.

Some folks are easily satisfied. Loud cheers greeted a "movie" of a 100-ton coal steamer crawling up Boston harbor.

The world's prosperity is now a "partisan" object, says a much-statement at The League. Thus does the little movie help improve each shining hour.

"Suitable dresses for business women" attract a much attention from the lookers-on nowadays as a sun-baked June circus poster on that old barn out Patham road way, in September.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

It seems that the boys around East Merrimack street have not yet been led to understand that they cannot make the Auditorium building by making the playground of the grass or something of the kind and cutting around the stone mouldings as they were Saturday night, in a manner that indicated total disregard for the building and for the police authority supposed to have some concern in preventing any damage to the building or the grounds. Saturday night a crowd of young urchins ranging from 11 to 14 years of age were playing around the building in a very mischievous manner and when driven from one doorway they simply moved to another and continued their performance. It seems that the custodian of the building, the trustees if necessary, should request Superintendent Atkinson of the police department to issue instructions to the officers on the beat in that locality to impress upon the youngsters that they will not be allowed to damage this building or the grounds in any form of any mischievous or otherwise. This should also be impressed upon the minds of the parents so that the men in charge of the building will not be continually annoyed by having to drive off the youngsters who think that it is their special privilege to scratch and deface and mark and to trample down even the most expensive shrubbery and destroy lawns that have been made beautiful at considerable expense. It is very plain that the children in the vicinity of the Auditorium will have to be kept with a firm hand that while they are free to play upon the walks, they cannot damage the grounds or the shrubbery nor do anything to deface the doors or the walls of the building.

The Lowell Ad club has a rival but entirely friendly battalion of co-workers who are doing their part in keeping Lowell on the map. Witness the large number of horsemen who circled away from Lowell every summer, popping up regularly at all the nearby country fairs and race meets and letting folks know they are from the Spindle City and glad of it. I never saw more Lowell men anywhere this summer at an out-of-town gathering of good citizens than those I ran into and sat with over at the Groton fair on Friday and Saturday last. I met many of them there, and several Lowell men also visited Tonsil and White River, and a goodly number took in the Worcester fair and let everyone know where they came from. Brockton is to be well represented, too, I am told. It has been good advertising for this city as well as rounding out the record of the Lowell Ad club. The country fairs are a big aid in creating good citizenship and new friends. Lowell citizens are doing their part in rallying around the banners of the rural cousins, who always like to see them bustle along and say hello.

A Chelmsford reader informs me that the local grange all-day harvest exhibition, dinner and evening celebration on Sept. 27 will offer a very attractive entertainment menu for not only the townspeople, but all "old-homers" who frequently return to Chelmsford on that day and renew old acquaintances. There will be a handsome exhibit of garden produce and home-made goods of every sort, all in the usual profusion and well worth seeing, my friend tells me. Chelmsford folks always give visitors a royal welcome. The grange celebration Wednesday will make that fact more forcibly evident once more, I am sure.

You haven't forgotten that Little one-track rail line that runs down between the buildings lying in the Middle and Market street territory, have you? A handy freight service alley for the big business concerns in that block of god-awful buildings. Well, the Boston & Maine has been "fixing up" along this line recently. The latest improvement in the erection of new little swinging wooden poles that shoot out horizontally a little over the height of an ordinary box car. These poles are put there to judge any absent-minded brakeman who may be riding you like and of switchers and forgets to lower his head when he comes to a "low bridge." These little slim poles are very light, of new wood and swing gaily in the breeze all the time, but they are mighty useful in protecting human life, as all knights of the rail can tell you.

ORLEANS SCHOOL NURSE Miss Mary Sheehan, daughter of John C. Sheehan of Chelmsford, was recently appointed school nurse for the town to succeed Miss Aldrich, who retired and resigned. The appointment was made by members of the Chelmsford school board. The new school nurse is a graduate of the Massachusetts school nurse class of 1920. She will assume her new duties at once.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH A supper will be served at the First Congregational church on Sept. 28, this evening to mark the opening of the fall and winter season of the Lowell Christian Endeavor union. Reports of the November 1st report of the conference will be read, and discussions of important projects for the coming month will be held. A large attendance is hoped for.

CLAIMS AGAINST CITY According to City Solicitor Edward J. Tierney, heavy rains of the past few weeks have resulted in claims against the city, totaling in the vicinity of $15,000. All are being investigated carefully before any report is submitted to the city council.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT AT AUDITORIUM

In connection with the agricultural exhibit, which is to be held in the Auditorium on Thursday afternoon and evening of this week, under the auspices of the North Middlesex Agricultural society, the committee is trying to arrange matters whereby a similar exposition, to be held in Chelmsford on the preceding day, will be the grange of that town, will be brought to Lowell for the benefit of the local public. The committee is also communicating with Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, to make arrangements for school children to contribute garden flowers and home products to the exhibit. The general public is also invited to display agricultural products of every description. There will be special music during the exhibit and all goods will be donated to charitable institutions at the conclusion of the affair.

EVERYBODY BACK ON STANDARD TIME

The city is back on standard time today, following yesterday's slight confusion relative to church services, street and steam car schedules. The return of standard time came at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, but few people remained awake that late to regulate their timepieces. Most of the people just turned the clock back an hour before retiring Saturday night. Many of these were sorry Sunday that they did not advance the hands eleven hours, for clocks with striking apparatus were on a dizzy rampage most of the day.

The fifth consecutive year of daylight saving was terminated in this state with the changing of the clocks yesterday, the schedule having become effective the last Sunday in April and terminating the last Sunday in September.

Reports are few where people made mistakes and forgot to adjust timepieces, for with four years of experience most knew just what to do and took the matter of changing clocks in much the same manner that they do giving presents at Christmas time.

When the arteries start to harden,
When grizzled the hair has grown,
No more in these hamlets of wonder
Shall you wander the pathways sweet,
No more shall you saunter under

But, the Forest was made for lovers,
And there is no age to love,
And the same enchantment hovers
In the heart and spirit of

Which glows in his loved one's eyes,
And the thrill of the old, old story
The spell of which never dies.

International Conference in December

BRUSSELS, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press).—An international conference to consider reparations, inter-allied debts and a loan to Germany, probably will be called for early in December, it is learned. The Belgian government, while it has not yet been asked by the allies to issue invitations, regards the summoning of such a meeting as certain. The December date was proposed so as to await the result of the Anglo-American negotiations for debt funding and to afford time in which to induce the United States to participate.

Judge Removed; Result of Liquor Ruling

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Sept. 25.—Judge J. R. Johnson of St. Lucie county, who recently ruled that state authorities could make no arrests in prohibition cases unless the liquor involved had been determined by analysis to be intoxicating, has been removed from office by Governor Hardee. The removal order, it was learned today, was signed Saturday after more than 1500 county residents had signed a petition asking the removal of both the judge and County Prosecutor Carpenter, because alleged laxity in law enforcement.

Why Buy Any Other Range Than The Crawford Range?

There are other good ranges, it is true, but the Crawford has in its construction all that makes the other ranges good. And besides it has many other things that make it more desirable. A range of the above style with the ash pan in the base instead of in front takes less space and, giving a shelf at the front end of top instead of an ash pan, it gives you more room on the top for kettles, and gives you a far better balanced design and better looking range. Another thing that makes it better is the asbestos lined oven; it not only keeps the heat in the oven, but equalizes it and makes the oven bake evenly on all sides. Top, bottom, sides and ends will be baked evenly. All the flue strip or partition as well as the oven plates are cup jointed in the Crawford Ranges. This makes for better and quicker draft. This can be illustrated by anyone smoking a corn cob pipe. Let him try to smoke it with a loose stem in the bowl and then push the stem in tight. He will know what a cup flue joint does in a range—"draws better."

The damper (the Crawford has only one, all other ranges have two) is far more simple. It is on top of the range. Not under the top. It is in plain sight, and not one that you have to close or open entirely, but one that you can open and close as much or as little as you want. It is marked Kindle, Check, Bake, so a child that understands the meaning of these three words can run a Crawford Range. And many other improvements that it would take too much space to explain make the Crawford more desirable, and when you consider that the Crawford Range, size for size, style for style and weight for weight costs no more than other makes without all those advantages, that certainly must make the Crawford Range better, and as we give you as easy terms of payment as you can get on any range—

WHY SHOULD YOU BUY ANY OTHER RANGE?

Come in anyway and look it over. If we can't convince you that the Crawford will do the work better and with less fuel and it is the range that you should buy, why, we won't be any worse friends. Priced from $52.00 to $246.50.

Greenwich Village Follies Great Success

THREE OF THE STARS IN THE GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES: LUCILLE CHALANT AND JULIA SILVERS AND (BELOW) DELLA VANNA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—After a give the Greenwich Village Follies month of new shows in which one after another has competed with another for the prize awarded to the dull and stupid, there has at last come to Broadway a real show jammed with delight, beauty, humor—a gorgeous evening from start to finish.

Horowitz the hat is tossed into the air and the reviewer rushes down Broadway following rurs of applause. John Murray Anderson's production of the Greenwich Village Follies is far and away the best thing of the season—a revue of beauty and gaiety, gorgeous sets and heart-cracking humor. Fresh from the orchestra seat, we ly ribald burlesque and Savoy burlesque, and finally endangered the health and life of every person in the audience by sending them into convulsions by ordering John Hazard forth to sing an "illustrated" song, "Good-Bye to Dear Old Alaska" after the fashion of the movie picture theatres of our ancestors. The slides were by Rube Goldberg.

The humor throughout is the kind we most enjoy—the rough and ribald foolishness of the Brennan and Savoy and Rube Goldberg type. It is this particular humor—it was also carried out in the overture and intermission curtains by Reginald Marsh and Cleon Throckmorton—that lent itself to sharp contrasts with the delicate beauty of the Anderson sets.

The high points are hard to select. The adaptation of the Oscar Wilde story, "The Nightingale and the Rose" stands shoulder to shoulder with the Ziegfeld "Follies" as the peak of its particular type of theatrical art.

Frankie Heath certainly deserves a line by herself. This young lady, lately snared from vaudeville, is overdoing with personality—she tossed it in helter-skelter at the audience when she sang "Atta Boy" and "I Love to Sit and Think of Me."

The Randall dancing, the masterly arrangement of the incidental music for the ballet scenes, too-dancing by Ula Sharon, the beauty of the chorus, the two Russian dancers, Sheehan's imitation of Ballet in the Chauve Souris burlesque, two songs, "A Kiss from a Russian Girl" and "Sixty Seconds Every Minute," were among the brightest colors in the Anderson design.

FREAK HORSE AT FORT HILL PARK ZOO

What is it? You tell 'em! Tom Braden, chief supporter and benefactor of the people's own Harum & Bailey at the little meagerie on the Fort Hill park hillside, can't tell you. Alex Chagnon, who runs the open-air stables up there on the hillside overlooking the tanneries, throws his hands up when you ask him about it.

Here comes Ben Dugan. Does he know? Ben has a shovel and wheelbarrow, the latter loaded with fresh English hay for a big Shetland pony over in the far corner of the big animal cage. "Don't ask me, I didn't raise him!" was Ben's terse reply.

The Sun horse expert decided to go to headquarters up in White River Junction, Vt., where the new zoo freak came from originally. But the trail was lost there.

This puzzle up there in the Fort Hill animal cage right next to the black bear, that has a nice little yard all his own much to his discomfort, is attracting a lot of attention. The Sun man managed to corner Mr. Braden during one surprisingly quiet hour at the Union station today, and discovered that:

This animal is a dwarf horse of uncertain origin and breed, weighs 72 pounds on its hoofs, each about the size of a Waterbury watch case, and is believed to be a little more than seven years old.

Visitors are traveling up the park hillside daily to see the new zoo addition.

"Must be a dwarf Shetland," "Must be a dwarf horse," "Look at his eyes!"

So it goes. Dugan finds as much fun following the little freak around the cage and patting it on the nose when it comes over to the wire in a friendly trot, as the older folks, who can't quite make out what sort of a breed this little fellow would claim to be if he could talk.

It's a member of the family of Morgan or some other strain all right, or looks like one, but of course there's no mighty strain of blood in this youngster with the toy feet.

He has stopped growing now, except around the ribs, where the flesh is bulging out excessively, something like a toy balloon from the upland clover, the fine corn and mellow shorts that Chagnon and his men carry into the little menagerie dining parlors three times a day.

"Strangest in town call this freak a 'pony,' but it isn't. When a man with Braden's reputation in the horse world can't explain the puzzle, that accompanies this Fort Hill exhibit, then it's going some. And Tom says he is also a member of the Want to Know club.

The lively, chunky little seven-year-old what-is-it is a prize package, via, a picture for spectators every day. Some call the color of the toy animal a bay, others have it seal brown. The color isn't one—just the ordinary length of an outdoor equine. There are four white ankles and a short brown mane, very thick. The tail drops to the heels and is streaked with white and gray hairs, with dark brown strands mixed in profusion.

The hoofs are the wonder of all, if you allow a little something for the large, round, peculiarly colored eyes that stare at you like an Alaskan Inuit who that Roy Stewart writes about in his Yukon yarns.

Those eyes startle you. They are piercing—with queer little spots all over the iris, and appear to be glazed over as if the freak was totally blind, although such is not the case.

Let's get back to those four hoofs. You could place one of them upon a watch case and hardly cover it. You could put them one at a time in a cup, and then it wouldn't be full up. Over Gotham street way is a Lowell blacksmith who is noted for his five-o'clock shoes for local race horses. If he had to make a pair of shoes for this park menagerie freak, the shoes wouldn't weigh more than an ounce apiece.

The freak horse is going to have excellent winter quarters. At present the little stable is well furnished, as stables go. The bedding is a foot thick, the open stall big enough to roll around in.

If this Braden generosity and patronage keeps on, Lowell will have a zoo one of these days that will be worth advertising on those chamber of commerce circulars that show the sights worth seeing in this town of ours.

Amazing Facts Fully Explain Tanlac Success

How 30,000,000 Bottles Were Sold in Less Than Eight Years—Big Worcester Druggists Enthusiastic—Thousands of Users Publicly Endorse It

The tremendous demand for Tanlac continues unabated, ever-increasing. Millions have rallied to its standard, unsolicited, and thousands have given public endorsement. That the large druggists everywhere are enthusiastic over this sensation of the trade is evidenced by the letters received with orders.

W. A. Haver & Co., wholesale druggists of Denver, Colo., writing under date of July 17, state: "We are submitting today our order for the fourth carload of your good since April 1. Taking into consideration local conditions this demand is not only exceptional but alone in the record sales for proprietary articles in this section."

On August 15th Brewer & Co., Inc., large wholesalers of Worcester, Mass., wrote: "Tanalac is our best selling proprietary. The demand is steadily increasing, and we anticipate a continued growth in volume of sales."

Since the first of the year it has been necessary to establish new branch offices, one in New York and one in Los Angeles, and the large modern laboratories at Dayton, O., Walkersville, Canada, and Mexico City are working over-time but are still unable to keep up with the deluge of orders. Tanlac has been on the market less than eight years but more than 30,000,000 bottles have been sold to date.

And the foreign field has been entered with the most phenomenal success. Mexico now knows Tanlac as well as the people of the United States and Canada, while Cuba has received the celebrated medicine with enthusiasm.

The reason for this amazing demand is found in one word: merit. No proprietary article could long survive the acid test of time and public trial if it did not possess real value and produce actual and positive results. It cannot depend merely on whirlwind advertising and "first call" appeal. Reck of Tanlac's unexcelled record and in the drug trade is Tanlac's success in producing results, and when this fact is thoroughly impressed there cannot possibly be any mystery in Tanlac's achievement in such a short time—the achievement of putting the top of the heap and holding undisturbed leadership over all preparations of its type ever produced—Adv.

Why Pretty Teeth

Are shown everywhere today

Look about you. Note how many teeth now glisten. Note how people show them as they never did before.

Millions of people are brushing teeth in a new way. If you don't know the good results, make this free test.

Fight dingy film

One object is to fight the film on teeth—that viscous film you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, under old methods, beautiful teeth were seen less often than today.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning.

New ways found

Then dental science found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. In that tooth paste are embodied those two great film combatants.

Five effects

But Pepsodent brings five effects. These are very important. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

Those are Nature's ever-present tooth-protecting agents. Every use of Pepsodent gives them manifold effect.

Pepsodent also polishes the teeth so film adheres less readily.

You see them now nearly the world over

These glistening teeth are now seen nearly the world over. Careful people of some fifty nations are now using Pepsodent. And those whiter teeth mean safer teeth. They mean a new dental era.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

This test will be a revelation, amazing but delightful. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

BOTH N. Y. TEAMS LOST YESTERDAY

Each, However, Needs But
One More Victory to Clinch
the Pennant

Horns Made Two, Home
Runs yesterday, Bringing
His Season Total to 42

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—New York's prospective world's series contenders, the Giants and Yankees, are separated today by a dead-in-the-wool, mathematically certain hold on the 1922 championships in the National and American leagues.

The Giants can clinch the pennant for the eighth time since 1894 by winning only one of the two games scheduled with the St. Louis Cardinals today. They could then lose all seven of their games while Pittsburgh won all three of its unplayed contests and still finish ahead of the Pirates who are also today.

The Yankees, as well as all other American League clubs, are not scheduled today. They will play the Pirates at home, the Cardinals at St. Louis, and the Browns at Cleveland.

Both New York clubs lost yesterday. Rogers Hornsby's two home runs, which brought his total to 42, helped the St. Louis Cardinals down the Giants, 10 to 6, while the first out-pitched Shawkey and Cleveland blazed the Yankees, 3 to 0. In the final inning, the Browns, meanwhile, kept mathematically in the race by defeating Philadelphia, 7 to 1, while the Pirates gained a half game on the Giants by dividing a double-header with Brooklyn. The Pirates came from behind to win the first, 4 to 2, but lost the second, 11 to 3, when Pittsburgh crossed the plate 10 times in the sixth inning.

St. Louis increased its third place margin over Chicago to a game and a half by trimming Boston, 1 to 2, while the White Sox lost to Washington, 3 to 4.

STILL CATCHING AT 50

When a ball of fame is established for baseball veterans Maurice Heuman of Jackson, Mich. will be entitled to a prominent place.

Aged 56, he still plays great ball. Heuman is catcher for Jackson.

MAURICE HEUMAN

council No. 57, United Commercial Travelers' team. He picks out one of the best big league. He can hit, too. Recently, out of five times at bat, he made three hits, a two-bagger and three singles. In 1922 and 1923 he belonged to the prominent club in the Ohio Central league.

Of their 10 games this season the traveling men have lost only one. Most of the opposing teams are semi-pros.

OPENING FOOTBALL GAME SATURDAY

St. John's Prep is ready for the football season of 1922. After two weeks of steady practice Coach "Jiggs" Donohue had brought his team to the pink of condition when they stepped onto the field for the first time last Saturday. The game ended in a scoreless tie and one of the best opening football games in years was presented to the several thousand fans who gathered to inaugurate the 1922 scholastic season.

Before the game Coach Donohue made the statement that his team was ready to start and that they would surpass the record of last year's first team. He even went further and said that his team would probably make a winning record for St. John's Prep.

When Dean Academy's second team meets the Danvers crowd on Columbus street on Saturday, the first of the fall football season will be on. St. John's has a fast charging team and made a great impression on the Everett team.

There is one open date in St. John's schedule, November 15th. It is reported that the school will secure a trip to New York City at that date, but nothing definite has been decided. It will be remembered that St. John's defeated this team in 1920 by a 19-0 score.

September 23, St. John's at Everett; St. John's at St. John's; October 12, St. John's at St. John's; October 28, St. John's at St. John's; November 4, St. John's at St. John's; November 11, St. John's at St. John's; November 18, St. John's at St. John's; November 25, St. John's at St. John's.

STONY BROOK LEAGUE

A resume of the baseball season just closed in North Chelmsford shows that St. John's team won 11, lost five and tied four games in the Stony Brook League. The officers of the team feel gratified over the success attained and hope to improve next season. It is possible that a new baseball diamond will be laid out in that direction. The following are the officers who guided the destinies of the team: President, Mr. Michael Boland, chairman; John O'Connor, secretary and Joseph Hehir, treasurer.

During a thunderstorm the water place in a train with bed as a good record.

LOWELL HORSE WINS AT World Series Comparisons of GROTON FAIR RACES

More than 12,000 country fair fans and lovers of good horse racing will witness the Groton fair races, which are the property of George Parker of Lowell, speed over the Groton fair grounds half-mile track this afternoon.

It was one of the finest performances made by any trotter or pacer with the old winged foot at the Groton fair grounds. The horses were somewhat difficult to handle.

Delmar was the only Lowell horse taking a win Saturday, and the track was in excellent condition for good performance. That's crack track around by Aile Delmar was the top card on the day's program of three events, and put the Lowell boy in a better class for more events to come.

Molestia, the bay gelding owned by Cadway, the Concord, N. H. sportsman, gave a finished performance and cantered in second position without much trouble. Molestia is a youngster of excellent parentage, Mabel being the sire.

EMIL MEUSEL

By BILLY EVANS
E. Meusel, New York Giants—Meusel is one of the most valuable outfielders in the National league. He does everything well.

In the series with the Yankees last fall his work was one of the outstanding features. He fielded perfectly and hit the ball timely. The Yankees pitchers found him troublesome throughout.

Meusel has played fine ball for the Giants this year. He is of the aggressive type and has plenty of nerve, the kind of player who shines in a tough series.

Meusel bats right-handed and is always well above the .300 mark. He hits the ball hard. While not anything but a power hitter, he is anything but a slow.

Ken Williams, St. Louis Browns—Williams has been the swat king of the American league this year. When he is in, he is in.

Williams is a big fellow and mighty fast. He can go for them in the field and hit a strong arm. He is a right-handed batter. On the bases he is always catching chances.

Williams is a left-handed batsman and takes a lower cut of the ball, although it lacks some of the viciousness of the Ruth wallop.

Bob Meusel, New York Americans—Bob Meusel possesses remarkable ability in every branch of play, yet does not get the most out of his possibilities because he lacks initiative. He doesn't take the game as seriously as he might, and is satisfied to be rated a mighty good player rather than a great star.

Meusel is a right-handed batter, takes a healthy swing, and is one of the most dangerous hitters in the American league. For a big fellow he is very fast on his feet, has a wonderful arm and is so accurate that opposing players say he throws strikes from the mound.

There is little to choose between the left fielders, all three are crack players. Each has some particular department in which he outshines the others. A great deal of the time the city's decision were to be given, Emil Meusel of the Giants would have to receive much consideration. A great player, assessing much aggressiveness coupled with an even disposition—the ideal type!

Freeman, St. Louis Browns—Freeman is a big fellow and mighty fast. He can go for them in the field and hit a strong arm. He is a right-handed batter. On the bases he is always catching chances.

Freeman is a left-handed batsman and takes a lower cut of the ball, although it lacks some of the viciousness of the Ruth wallop.

BATTLING SIKI KAYOS CARP

French Idol Stopped in Sixth
Round by Senegalese
Fighter
Carpentier Given a Terrible
Beating—Big Crowd Jeers
Former Idol

PARIS, Sept. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—George Carpentier, heavy-weight champion boxer of Europe and idol of France, was defeated yesterday by Battling Siki, the Senegalese fighter, in the sixth round of what was to have been a 20-round bout.

Carpentier never had a chance after the third round. He was barely able to respond to the blows at the beginning of the sixth. With his right eye completely closed and his nose broken, he was unable to put up a guard.

Threatened Referee

In the sixth the negro fighter planted a series of terrific rights to Carpentier's head, and the French idol crumpled to the floor. One of his legs caught between the legs of the Senegalese while he was falling.

The crowd, the largest that ever witnessed a boxing contest in France, sensed the end. All was uproar. Many persons jumped into the ring and carried the Senegalese on their shoulders to the ring.

The referee, Harry Bernstein, at first ruled that Siki had been disqualified for "tripping," but the throng, which considered that Carpentier had been beaten squarely by a better man, received the decision with a great chorus of hoots and jeers and even threatened the referee with bodily harm.

The three judges, Victor Meyers, Jean Pujol, Frenchman, and Mr. Henderson of London, went into consultation. An hour later they declared the negro the winner. Their verdict was received with terrific cheering from the spectators who had remained in the arena for it, many of them in an ugly mood. Carpentier had been hooted by large numbers of the crowd as he was taken from the ring to his dressing room.

Crowd Jeers Former Idol

The outcome was entirely unexpected. Carpentier was the favorite when the men entered the ring, and the crowd was dumfounded when it saw him pummeled all over the ring and subjected to terrible punishment at the hands of the big black.

Carpentier tried every trick of his ring knowledge to save off defeat. Twice he was warned for hitting during the fifth round. He seemed evident that he was anxious to be disqualified by the referee rather than to suffer ignominy of a knockout. When his subtleties became apparent the crowd, which previously had been "pulling" for him, jeered and hooted and cheered the negro.

When the fight Siki appeared, he covered up in fear of his opponent's "terrible right." The Senegalese, however, seemed to take courage after having received four rights to the jaw, which failed to make the slightest impression on him. Carpentier's face took on a puzzled look as the burly batter took his blows and came back looking for more.

No confident was Carpentier of ultimate victory, however, that he was smiling as he went to his corner when the going ended the first round. He said to Francois Desamps, his manager and trainer.

The crowd evidently was of the same opinion as Carpentier, for ill-tempered cheering him, the Senegalese not having landed a solid blow up to that time. "Georges is letting him stay for the moving pictures," was an expression heard from various spectators. The big Senegalese evidently was considered a kind of sacrificial offering to the passions of Georges for the edification of the boxing enthusiasts.

The French champion appeared thin. His complexion was yellow and his face drawn, but he had stripped off apparently in good condition for the fray, albeit somewhat "fina." Among the great multitude in the new Buffalo Stadium it would not be venturing a guess to say there were comparatively few who believed the Senegalese would be returned the winner. The Frenchman's weight was announced at 173½ pounds.

Siki, a beautiful picture of health and condition. His skin was like ebony as compared with the whiteness of that of the Frenchman. Carpentier smiled in his usual debonair style as the bathrobe of the black man fell from his shoulders.

In the first round Siki rushed out of his corner and met Carpentier before the Frenchman was fairly out of his chair. Carpentier, however, caught the black man with two straight rights. Siki covered up, and then went down to one knee from a light left. The referee ordered him up.

Deadly Right Falls

Carpentier then swung two hard rights to the jaw. Siki took them, merely shaking his head, and bore the Carpentier's face wore a troubled expression, although plainly he was holding back. Siki did not land a clean blow.

In the second round Carpentier, with a look of disdain in his face, repeatedly jabbed Siki with his left, without effect. Then he came rushing in, and he caught him flush on the jaw with a terrific right swing. Carpentier drew back, expecting Siki to follow, but the negro, however, instead rushed in and shot two short hooks to the body.

Just before the bell Carpentier again caught Siki flush on the chin, but the negro merely grimaced at him and said: "You don't hit very hard, Al. Georges." The round was Carpentier's, a white margin, but the Frenchman was puffing hard as he wandered to his corner. Also, he had lost his confident smile.

In the third round Siki rushed from his corner toward Carpentier. Carpentier backed away and appeared cautiously. Then he feinted with his left, obtaining an opening drive a hard right to Siki's jaw. The negro dropped to one knee and took a count of seven. Carpentier jumped and caught Carpentier with left and right swings to the stomach. Carpentier went down and took a count of four.

Georges Fights Foul

When the Frenchman arose he plainly was groggy. Siki, seeing his advantage, showed rights and lefts upon him, always playing for the stomach. He had Carpentier gasping for breath and staggering at the end of the round.

In the fourth round Siki pummeled Carpentier all over the ring. The Frenchman was barely able to stand the punishment. He was bleeding, his right eye was closed, his nose was flattened and his mouth was wide open. Carpentier resorted to all the known tricks of his long experience.

He endeavored to hold the arms of the negro under his own arms. Siki, ever anxious to finish, this time, missed many blows that would have ended the bout had they landed. Meanwhile Georges occasionally shot wicked rights to his opponent's head, which, however, failed to show him up.

Up to this time the negro showed no marks of punishment.

The fifth round Siki again sprang to the offensive from his corner, intending to polish off the Frenchman. Carpentier met the attack with a low blow and was warned by the referee. Bernstein. The low blow seemed to enrage Siki, who went furiously at him, missing numerous swings. Finally, however, he caught Carpentier with a short hook to the jaw and the Frenchman went down. He gripped the ropes in rising and butted Siki in the stomach.

The Frenchman was helpless. Again he was warned by the referee for hitting. Marked by the crowd was yelling to the referee to stop the encounter. When the bell rang Carpentier groggily staggered to his corner. He drew hard and Carpentier was unable to stand. A majority of the spectators expected his second. Desamps, to throw up the sponge, as the Frenchman was unable to put up his hands. A short upercut from Siki sent him reeling backwards, and then the negro drove hard and Carpentier went down. Carpentier crumpled to the floor, half-way through the ropes, completely out after 1 minute and 10 seconds of fighting.

Grand Circuit Races

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 25.—With the arrival here of rights and lefts, several drivers who raced last week at Illinois state fair, fields are expected to be much larger for the second week of Grand Circuit racing here, which starts today.

In the four events on today's card, 46 horses are named to start. The 2:12 pace has 12 starters, the 2:09 and 1:11, the 2:19 trot 14 and the 2:17 pace 9.

Princess Yolanda, the eldest daughter of the king of Italy, is declared to be the most accomplished horsewoman in the world. She has won all the women's European royals.

The old boys also expressed the belief that free hitting tends to eliminate much of the strategy of the game.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS

Yale and Penn: State Elevens Display Unusual Early Season Strength

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Displaying unusual early season strength, the performances of Yale and Penn State were outstanding among the few large eastern colleges, whose elevens kicked off in the opening games of the season.

Uncovering a powerful back field attack, led by Captain Jordan and a promising all around combination, the Blue eleven plunged its way to an easy victory over Bates, 45 to 6, bettering by 20 points the score rolled up against the same team in the opening game last year.

Penn State, with veteran material in the line and backfield, was given nothing but a workout by St. Bonaventure, the final score being 54 to 0.

Washington & Jefferson, regarded as one of the strongest teams in the country last year, and Syracuse, the most prominent of other elevens to get into action, met unexpected opposition from supposedly weak adversaries.

The presidents, with many 1921 veterans in the lineup, were held scoreless for three periods by Geneva college of Geneva, Pa., but failed to score two touchdowns the final quarter and win 14 to 0.

Syracuse played sagaciously both on defense and offense and was extended to win from Hobart, 20 to 7.

Carnegie Tech, which plays Yale at New Haven next Saturday, rolled up a score of 50 to 0 against Waverly, Pa. Holy Cross, Springfield, Maine, Duxbury, Franklin and Marshall and Union were among the other elevens to start the season victoriously.

Replacing the old goal after touchdown, Saturday's play afforded an interesting test of the new rule providing a try for point after touchdown. The new feature is a team effort whereas the former scoring attempt was an individual play.

In the Yale-Bates game the Blue elected after each touchdown, to try for a drop kick after the team lined up in front of the goal post on the five yard line. Six of seven attempts were successful.

BILLY EVANS SAYS:

Recently there was staged at Boston a game between old-time stars of the American and National leagues. It was my good fortune to be in Boston at the time these players were congregating for the big game.

For three or four days I punched the bag, which, in baseball, means "to get my opinion as to this free hitting."

Nichols, Bill Bradley, Tommy Tucker, Jimmy Collins, Bobby Lowe and two score other oldtimers.

The old boys said that the oldtimers wanted to talk about most was the home-run mania which is now prevalent in baseball. None of them could recall the last time they hitting that "now" features the game.

The pitchers of the old school like Young and Nichols, were anxious to get my opinion as to this free hitting.

Naturally, I made a hit with them when I told them that possibly the hitting isn't as good as it was in their days. You know, the oldtime pitchers are very sensitive about the records they hang up.

However, I told them that I believed much of the home-run hitting was not due to any greater ability on the part of the batsman or less effectiveness on that of the pitchers, but to the lively ball.

The lively ball was of great interest to the oldtimers. Jimmy Collins said he was seriously thinking of giving a protector and mask at third. If all the reports he had on the ball were true.

The oldtimers, to a man, do not think that the orgy of hitting that has enveloped the game is a good thing for the sport. The host of them are of the opinion that the lively ball has taken the premium off home-run hitting. Instead of being the unusual, the making of home runs has become very ordinary.

The old boys also expressed the belief that free hitting tends to eliminate much of the strategy of the game.

Making Your Own Movies: The Art of Make-up

MURIEL GAKES, FILM GUILD ACTRESS, AND DIRECTOR FRANK TUTTLE DISCUSSING MAKE-UP FOR AN IMPORTANT SCENE.

BY OSCOOD PERKINS

Film Guild Actor and Make-Up Expert.

Beauty and character are the only facial attributes necessary for the movie screen. And good make-up will surely bring out upon any face one or both of these. You cannot always be beautiful, but you can be a type; or perhaps you can radiate a doll-like perfection, which may lack character, but, at least, is easy on the eyes.

Most movie stars have spent years perfecting the make-up which makes them look so beautiful, and even so, they take special tests with a make-up man over a period of two or three days before beginning any big production. Many stars have started with very ordinary photographic qualities, but by dint of observing what a touch of red here or an extra curl there would accomplish, have become beautiful on the screen.

Start your first make-up by cleaning your face with cold cream. After wiping the cold cream off, apply yellow film grease paint and work up a smooth surface from your collar line to your hair. There must be no blotches in this surface for it is the foundation of everything that follows.

Next rouge the lips with light carmine. Red photographs black, so you must be careful not to use ordinary street rouge or to apply even light carmine in anything like the quantities ordinarily used by women. Men may often dispense with rouge altogether. This same rouge may be used to change the entire shape of the face. For example, double chins may be rounded away into dark shadows; plump cheeks may be thinned if desired to a point of sunken shadowiness; the contour may be lengthened by bordering the cheeks with rouge which skillfully blends into the basic yellow, or may be rounded out by using the same effect in reverse, that is, lightening the shadows at the sides of the face. If you have red hair, you will become a brilliant brunette.

The eyes, of course, are most important. You must try in successive tests various combinations of black, blue, green, brown, and red as a color with which to line them. Everyone uses a different mixture. Lavender is the best shade to start with.

With this mixture, line the edge of the upper eyelid and then work back towards the eyebrow, lightening the shade as you go until it finally blends with the grease paint. You do the same thing working downwards from the lower lid. As a final touch, line your eyelids with black cosmetics and

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of people are asking themselves, "There can't be a laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. It will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address: Dr. W. D. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 28 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian sugar and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Enfield, N. C., who is 73, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles Chapman of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps. Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a week's doctor's bills. Have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

TAKE DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN

don't try any baby doll beading effects. The corners of the eyes must be shadowed with brown or red, working down to a heavily marked brown or red point at the exact corner.

Over all this you must spread special film powder and pat it in with a puff. All these greases and powders are obtainable through any drug store or my customer. There are numerous special make-up effects for pallor or scars or for Indian, Chinaman, negro make-ups. All these can be obtained from special make-up text books. The hardest make-ups of all are character parts, such as the scars and crow's feet of old age, which take special high lighting in white.

Wigs, which you can get at any costume shop, will help a great deal. False whiskers, mustaches, sideburns or heavy eyebrows can be made of crepe hair and glued on with gum arabic. It is much better, however, to grow them, for the crepe hair never is very convincing.

TOMORROW: WORDS AND PICTURES.

H. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Startram is the reward for theatrical merit, and that is why it has been conferred on Arthur Murray, who will appear with G. Carroll Glucas & Co. in "Likes and Dislikes" at the H. F. Keith theatre, this week, beginning today.

Ward in "Babies," a delicious comedy. Such a pronounced hit did the two make that Irving Berlin wrote a comedy about them, "The Big Show," put together one of his funniest pieces, "Likes and Dislikes" for Miss Murray.

The story is that eternal triangle, but couched in a humorous vein, and filled out with black taste in one mouth when it is over. Mr. Glucas is a very well known actor who has played much of the fun in "The Big Show."

"Wimmin" is a title which is exceedingly prolific of interesting things, and Charles Crafts and Jack Haley, in introducing it to the public, are bringing forward one of the simplest of conversational comedies. Although these two men talk for 15 minutes on this very broad subject, they really get to no definite conclusion. An audience will agree with all they say, and will marvel at their deductions, and will laugh their heads off over the odd way things are put.

Ben Smith, who used to be the stage partner of Hughie Jennings, the old Detroit manager, will bring his sparkling assortment of songs and stories to the bill. Smith works in blackface. Few men know better than he how to put together a monolog interspersed with songs, and succeed in hitting an audience squarely between the eyes with it.

Fern Redmond and H. Wells have a comedy with singing and dancing, called "The Gyp." It is built on the gypsy fortune teller idea, and it is a sparkling bit of performing which will meet with instant approval. Princess Winona is an Indian maiden who sings songs which range from the old Indian chants to grand opera, and Anderson & Yvel are the leading comedians of the current bill at the Merrimack Square theatre.

STRAND THEATRE

A triple-featured picture of more than ordinary worth is promised to the Strand patrons for the first three days of the week today. Heading the list is "Colleen Moore in Rupert Hughes, production entitled 'The Wall Flower.' This is positively one of the most interesting and amusing comedy dramas that Hughes has ever written, and he has given the screen many successes. Shirley Mason in 'The Ragged Dicks' and Clyde Cook in 'The Eskimo' will be the contributing features of merit. It looks like a strong bill and should satisfy all patrons.
